Thanks to the whole wheat in Vita-Weat (the all British Crispbread) —

the teeth and gums are given the exercise they need

Analysis gives the following comparison with wholemeal bread :

	Vita-Weat (The Lancet)	Wholemeal Bread (The Practitioner)
Moisture - - - -	4.90	45.00
Protein - - - -	10.32	6.30
Fat - - - -	7.90	1.20
Carbohydrates, etc. - -	74.28	46.30
Mineral matter, ash, etc.	2.60	1.20
	100%	100%
Calorific Value per lb.	1846	1105

THE 'CRUNCHINESS' of Vita-Weat gives the teeth their necessary exercise, of which the modern inclination towards soft foodstuffs tends to deprive them; and this in turn results in a proper salivation of the food bolus, with greater ease of digestion.

Nothing essential is removed from the whole wheat berry in the manufacturing processes, which conserve the vitamins A, B, and D. Since the wheat starch is completely disintegrated, Vita-Weat can be recommended with confidence in cases where ordinary bread is contra-indicated. Its ripe corn flavour tempts the most jaded appetite.

Repeat Orders PROOF of SUPERIORITY

There is no better testimonial than a repeat order. The many received from Hospitals for the 'D & H' Protector are convincing proof that daily use emphasizes the value of this machine's exclusive and patented features. Simple to operate and entirely self cleansing, the Protector renders the cleansing of bed pans and urine bottles a quick and inoffensive task. All standard types of bed pans are securely held by the special streamlined holders without adaptation. Illustrated literature, showing models suitable for installation in existing or in new buildings, will be sent upon request.

OUR SERVICE TO DOCTORS AND THEIR DEAF PATIENTS!

— NUMBER ONE —

Particulars gladly sent and
Tests are made at Aurists, Doctors' patients, or any of our addresses. Medical Press Reports are interesting.
Gold Medallist and Diploma
Holder.

WHEN a deaf aid becomes necessary for your patient—we place a specialised organisation at your disposal. Such are the varying degrees and forms of deafness that no one type of aid can possibly suit the particular needs of different cases—for this reason, our service includes the free testing of the patient by the "Ardente" AURAMETER—whereby the exact aural needs are determined and plotted by graph. Thus an aid (Bone Conduction, Air Conduction, Electrical or Non-Electrical) most suited to the patient's needs is assured—and no expense is incurred until the patient is satisfied—with HEARING.

FOR EFFECTIVE AND SAFE ANALGESIA

To the patient's plea for something to relieve headache, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, the pains of myalgia and arthritis, or the periodic suffering of women, there is no more effective answer than a prescription for VEGANIN. A trial of this synergistic combination of acetylsalicylic acid, phenacetin and codeine will demonstrate its analgesic superiority over that of the individual drugs administered separately. Moreover, with Veganin, there is no systemic disturbance, no habituation; it is safe in the patient's hands.

THE HOSPITAL YEAR.

REVIEW BY THE EDITOR.

Patients treated in the Voluntary Hospitals.

DURING the year 1934 1,300,000 patients were treated in the wards of the voluntary hospitals and 6,000,000 in their out-patient departments; these figures represent an approximately normal increase of 60,000 in-patients and 285,000 out-patients over the numbers treated in the preceding year. This immense amount of work is distributed somewhat unevenly over the 87,000 beds which the Voluntary Hospital System now provides; more so, possibly, than is altogether warranted. No amount of planning, organisation, or arrangement could, of course, ever bring about an entirely even adjustment of load to bed accommodation. At the same time the difference between a 100 per cent. occupation in some of the large hospitals and a 10 per cent. occupation in some of the small ones suggests that had due weight been given to the factor of transport facilities and the lesson of the overcrowding of the large hospitals by patients from the country district been borne in mind, many of these partially occupied hospitals would never have been built and the available resources would have been spent where they were most required. Matters, however, can hardly be improved until an agreement is reached as to the appropriate place of the Cottage Hospital in the general health scheme of the country. When this has been done, and not till then, will it be possible to judge whether proposals to build new small hospitals or to extend existing ones really merit support.

Voluntary Hospital Finances.

During the year 1934 the voluntary hospitals as a whole received for all purposes £16,496,522; they spent £15,043,140 on maintenance, new buildings and equipment, and were left with a balance of £1,453,382 available for the purposes of endowment and to meet the costs of present and future extensions. This balance, large as it is, does not mean that every hospital ended the year with a surplus, and those who might be inclined to regard hospital finances as entirely satisfactory would do well to read carefully the financial review which Sir Charles Harris has kindly contributed to the Year-Book and in which special reference is made to the fact that the surplus of one hospital is not available to meet the deficit of another.

The Voluntary Hospitals Commission.

It is to be regretted that the voluntary hospitals did not take full advantage of all that was either explicit or implicit in the report of the Cave Committee in 1921. So far as they themselves were concerned, they rested content to hear that which they knew before, viz. :—

“The voluntary hospital system, which is peculiar to the English-speaking peoples, is part of the heritage of our generation; and it would be lamentable if by our apathy or folly it were suffered to fall into ruin.”

They did not realise that their future depended not upon a brave phrase and a consciousness of their own integrity, but upon action of a kind to which they were by the nature of things unaccustomed and for which they were singularly ill-equipped. Indeed they looked askance, if not with actual suspicion, at those local advisory* bodies which were subsequently brought into being, and whose effective life came to an end with the funds which they were set up to distribute. But these advisory bodies had in them the germs of

* In this connection it may not be out of place to quote the duties of these advisory bodies as outlined in the Interim Report of the Voluntary Hospitals Commission in the year 1923 :—

- “(a) to act as local advisers to the Commission,
- “(b) to collect information as to the needs of their area,
- “(c) to further co-operation between hospitals,
- “(d) to co-ordinate appeals,
- “(e) to consider the possibility of arranging the transfer of patients where this can advantageously be done,
- “(f) to prepare, where practicable, schemes of co-operative purchase,
- “(g) to advise as to the adoption of a uniform system of hospital accounts throughout the area,
- “(h) to organise systematic contributions both from employers and employees in areas where no such systems at present exist,
- “(i) to undertake the distribution of any contributions made by an Approved Society in cases where the Society is purely local in character,
- “(j) generally to take every possible step to assist the hospitals in their area to maintain the present voluntary system.”

THE HOSPITAL YEAR

that which if developed would have been invaluable to the hospitals themselves as well as to those whose task it was, eight years later, to frame the Local Government Act of 1929. In any case there did not arise any movement to bring the voluntary hospitals into closer relationship with each other, or any tendency on the part of responsible committees of management to look at health and hospital matters from a wider point of view than that of their own institution. In consequence in 1929 the voluntary hospitals, whose history and experience might have been expected to entitle them to an almost preponderating influence in the drafting of an Act that was, among other things, to lay the foundation of a national health service, figure in one small section inserted almost grudgingly at the last moment.

The Act, indeed, did awake the hospitals from their complacency, but only for a little time. Through their representative Association they decided with little delay to set up a Commission to consider their position, and in a few, a very few, instances, steps were taken locally to prepare for that consultation with the municipal authorities for which the well-known Section 13 of the Local Government Act made provision. No Commission, however, was set up, and it was not until June 1935, six years later, that the voluntary hospitals did that which would have been better done fourteen years earlier. At the annual conference of The British Hospitals Association held at Leamington a Commission was set up with the following reference :—

“To take into consideration the present position of the voluntary hospitals of the country; to enquire whether, in view of recent legislative and social developments, it is desirable that any steps should be taken to promote their interests, develop their policy and safeguard their future; and to frame such recommendations as may be thought expedient and acceptable.”

It was wisely determined that the Commission should not be a “domestic” one, but composed of men and women of affairs outside the Council of The British Hospitals Association itself. There has been almost universal agreement both with regard to the wisdom of setting up the Commission and with regard to the wisdom of calling in outside help. The Association were fortunately able to secure as chairman Lord Sankey, the late Lord Chancellor, and to obtain as members those whose opinions will command respect. Law, finance, medicine, nursing and administration are all represented, and the findings of the Commission will be awaited with confidence that they will prove of material usefulness to the voluntary hospitals individually and collectively as well as to the public authorities and to the State itself.

The Commission has been set up in no narrow or antagonistic spirit. The voluntary hospitals know that the country generally has no desire to see voluntary effort disappear, and they on their part realise that in order that voluntary effort may play its part most effectively there is need of readjustment to meet altered conditions. There is nothing to be wondered at in this. There has been some ill-informed criticism that the setting up of a Commission implies a recognition of failure and is a signal of distress. Nothing could be further from the truth. The task of the Commission is to examine that portion of the hospital service of the country which depends upon voluntary effort and to outline the steps that should be taken to improve it as an organised system, so that its services may be used to the best possible advantage and that it may work most harmoniously with those other health services that depend for their support upon the resources of the State.

In connection with the work of the Commission it is of interest to give the results of an enquiry into the progress made to give effect to Section 13 of the Local Government Act, 1929, which reads as follows :—

“The council of every county and county borough shall, when making provision for hospital accommodation in discharge of the functions transferred to them under this Part of this Act, consult such committee or other body as they consider to represent both the governing bodies and the medical and surgical staffs of the voluntary hospitals providing services in or for the benefit of the county or county borough as to the accommodation to be provided and as to the purposes for which it is to be used.”

There are in England and Wales :—

THE HOSPITAL YEAR

The following is a summary of the replies to the enquiry :—

Area.	Voluntary Hospital Committees formed under Section 13, Local Government Act, 1929.	No Voluntary Hospital Committee formed under the Section.	No replies received.
County Councils	31	23	9
County Boroughs	52	21	10
Totals ...	83 (57%)	44 (30%)	19 (13%)

It is significant that 60 out of the 83 committees formed have held no more than 26 consultations with the public authorities. In 34 cases the formation of the committee has been the end of the matter. In some cases where no formal committee has been set up, friendly conferences have taken place between a particular voluntary hospital and a public authority.

Joint Committees.

In 16 cases joint committees representative of the public authorities (usually the Health Committee) and the voluntary hospitals have been formed.

Consultations have taken place mainly about accommodation and co-ordination of services, but such subjects as the training of nurses and midwives, operating theatres, health surveys, road accidents, and money allocations have also been discussed.

Relations on the whole appear to be friendly; there are isolated cases where the voluntary committee has been ignored. There is evidence of greater inactivity in the county areas than in the county borough areas.

Three instances of lack of vision on the part of the voluntaries may be given. Once when the county council approached the voluntaries with regard to the treatment of normal maternity cases in the cottage hospitals, it was told that each cottage hospital must decide the matter for itself. Here was an example of a public authority anxious to provide for a definite service on an area basis—an obvious case for an equally wide view to have been taken by the voluntary hospitals themselves. Again, a county authority asked the secretary of the body representing the voluntary hospitals to circularise the voluntary hospitals on its behalf. The county council was advised to undertake this work itself. In a third case an assurance by the public authority that nothing prejudicial to the voluntary hospitals would be proposed has been interpreted as an indication that there was no need to establish contact of any kind, and there has been no contact of any kind between 1929 and January 1936.

The following examples of effective contact are given :—

COUNTY COUNCILS.

LONDON.

In the County of London a committee representative of the lay members of the boards of management of the voluntary hospitals and of their medical and surgical staffs was formed as a representative committee under the Act immediately after the passing of the Public Health Act, 1929, and has been in frequent and continuous consultation with the London County Council as regards hospital matters generally.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

The voluntary hospitals committee under the Act was formed as follows :—

Boards of management	..	8
Medical and surgical staffs	..	10
Total	.. ..	18

This was consulted early in 1930—twice by a committee of the county council and together they came to the conclusion that the “Scheme of Medical Services” operating in the county formed a satisfactory basis of discussion under the Act. That scheme is operated by a county council committee consisting of members elected by the Public Health, Maternity and Child Welfare, Tuberculosis, Education and Public Assistance Committees. The main features of this scheme, which have been in operation since 1920, are :—

1. General objective. To set up a complete HEALTH ORGANISATION based upon the co-operative work of all the medical and nursing professions in the county.
2. Technique of achieving this objective. To make the hospital the HEALTH CENTRE.

Details :

- (a) Division of the county into four “hospital areas” (with—in 1929—12 out-stations to be increased by 1932 to 24 out-stations, 12 cottage hospitals and 12 adapted or new buildings).

- (b) Conducting at one hospital centre in each area all the medical services for which the county council is responsible.
- (c) The close association of all the private medical practitioners of each area with hospital centre.
- (d) The establishment of a Medical Advisory Committee of the county council—the chairman of which serves (without a vote) on
- (e) A Special Medical Services Committee of the county council.
- (f) The scope of the health service is necessarily restricted to the statutory powers conferred on the county council, but
- (g) Facility of expansion is an important part of the scheme, and expansion has taken place especially in research and medical examination, as also in orthopaedic and dental treatment.

Hospital Accommodation.

The county council has made a grant of £900 to the Lydney Voluntary Hospital towards the cost of new out-station accommodation to be built by the voluntary hospital on the terms that they are to maintain and keep it in repair and pay all rates and taxes and maintenance charges whilst the county council is to have the right to use it for such treatment work as they may require—for a period of 30 years.

Fracture Cases.

A great deal of interest has been aroused by the report of a Committee set up by the British Medical Association which was issued early in 1935, and which amply establishes that the prompt and skilful treatment of accidents can relieve suffering, minimise disability and save thousands of pounds to the community. Two difficulties generally confront those who wish to improve matters connected with health; (1) to decide what is the best form of treatment, and (2) to see where the money is to come from. In this case both of these difficulties are absent. There is complete agreement regarding the treatment required and incontrovertible evidence that its provision will save a great deal more than its cost. While voluntary effort should and no doubt will play its appropriate part, it is to be hoped that it will not, as in the past, be expected to carry any undue financial burden. Too long it has been fashionable to make use of the existing voluntary hospitals as industrial and even governmental stand-bys. Voluntary effort is properly employed in looking after those who cannot pay for what they need and not in shouldering the responsibilities of those who can and who would have to do so were there no voluntary hospitals. To expect voluntary effort to undertake financial responsibilities for the treatment of what are mainly industrial burdens is to add insult to injury. The prompt treatment of the victim relieves the pockets of the employer, of the mutual insurers, of the Friendly Societies and of the rates. Why voluntary effort should be expected to pay one penny of the cost baffles imagination. It is only necessary to consider for a moment a condition of affairs in which there are no hospitals, voluntary or municipal. Should a railway accident, a fire, a flood, a disaster of any kind occur, steps would be taken within an hour to set up temporary hospitals and provide a staff of doctors; and though voluntary effort would as always be ready to help, the entire responsibility would rest with the civic authorities. This responsibility moreover would be a continuing one with two results; first, that permanent arrangements would be made to meet all future contingencies, and secondly the cost of such arrangements would be carefully placed upon the shoulders of those legally and morally responsible. Advantage has been taken of the existence and of the excellence of the voluntary hospitals, but the matter of paying for the cost has been either forgotten altogether or has been obscured by contributions of an uncertain and entirely insufficient character. It is essential, therefore, that at the outset there should be a clear appreciation regarding financial responsibilities and a business-like approach to what is in point of fact a business proposition. The first step is to ascertain the existing provision for the treatment of fractures and to see how it agrees with that which is required. For this purpose the enquiry has been sent out by the British Medical Association and The British Hospitals Association, together to ascertain (1) the present organisation of the hospitals for the treatment of fractures, and (2) the views of the hospitals regarding the subject generally. Having ascertained the extent of the existing facilities for the prompt and skilful treatment of fractures, which may be regarded as a front line of defence, and having located weaknesses and gaps, efforts can then be intelligently directed and concentrated where they are most needed. While a strong front line might not meet all that is required it is perfectly certain that to spend money upon rehabilitation clinics, which may be regarded as a second line, before putting the front line in a state of repair is the wrong way of tackling the problem. A good front line must reduce the cost of the second line and might make a third line altogether unnecessary. There is here an opportunity of doing on a national scale a magnificent piece of work, and one that cries out to be done. There is no problem of treatment; there is no problem of finance. The medical profession, the voluntary hospitals, the Home Office, and the Ministry of Health are all interested in it, and nothing should be allowed to stand in the way of accomplishment with as little delay as possible.

Bogus Appeals.

It is possible that sweepstakes have turned attention to the usefulness of the word "Hospital" to hide illegalities and frauds and to open pockets. It is also natural enough that the promoters of bogus appeals should follow as closely as possible the devices of those who are genuine enough in their efforts to raise money for hospitals. Whether these genuine efforts are always also wise ones or not is another matter.

The difference between the genuine and the bogus appeal is that in the first the promoters derive no monetary benefit whatever—their sole motive is to benefit the hospital; in the latter they make as much as ever they can and their sole motive is to benefit themselves. It is true that in some cases promotion expenses, even in the genuine appeal, amount to a very large percentage of the total sum raised. There are those who think that it is good business to spend £10 to get £1. They say "Why not? If the £10 were not spent the £1 would never come to the hospital." They may be right, but there are not a few people who dislike the look of accounts where expenses figure so largely as to dwarf the paltry sum that reaches the hospital. In the genuine appeal the promoter often employs professional help, and as some think, at excessive cost. In the bogus appeal the promoter is himself the professional expert and sees to it that as much money as possible sticks in his own pocket.

As the law stands, there is nothing illegal in this pocketing of money if it can be shown that any portion, however small, of the ill-gotten gains has been given to a single hospital. Some of these schemes are so lucrative that it is good business from their point of view to make half a dozen considerable donations to several hospitals and use their acknowledgments as guarantees of bona fides.

The hospitals are determined to put an end to this scandal, and are prepared to promote legislation, if necessary, and if the difficulties connected with the drafting of a Bill that will really effect the object in view can be overcome.

But before promoting legislation, much can be effected by the hospitals themselves. In the first place, both The British Hospitals Association and the Charity Organisation Society are prepared to advise regarding the credentials of any scheme that purports to raise money in the name of hospitals. There is no difficulty where the scheme is a genuine one, in ascertaining certain primary facts. It is necessary to learn the precise authority upon which the effort to collect money for hospitals is based. An individual hospital would not allow an unauthorised use of its own name for the purpose of collecting money; in the same way, hospitals as a whole have a right to know the authority upon which a collection in the name of hospitals generally is being made. Each hospital has a part share in this title and is justified in doing all it can to safeguard it from misuse. Then there should be known the rules that govern the effort and the methods which are being employed. Thirdly, the names of those who compose the responsible committee of management should be made known and lastly an Income and Expenditure Account, properly audited, and showing the gross (not the net), takings and the amounts distributed, should be published. The public are definitely urged unless they are completely satisfied regarding an appeal made to them in the name of hospitals, to make enquiries either to the headquarters of The British Hospitals Association or to the Headquarters of the Charity Organisation Society, to ascertain whether these primary facts are known and generally what is the status of the appeal. Already steps taken on these lines have put an end to two going concerns and it will not be long before there is a third added to the list. The public can count upon the sympathetic help of the police in their efforts to put an end to the activities of these rogues.

One final word of warning is necessary. Good-natured people are so anxious to help hospitals that they sometimes incautiously not only part with money but allow their names to be used as patrons. They not unnaturally regard an appeal for a hospital as worthy of support, and they may be shown genuine receipts for payments to hospitals and letters of thanks, and they are disinclined to be suspicious. Recently the written testimonials of certain persons in high positions were secured by an organisation of doubtful character. These testimonials were immediately withdrawn so soon as the true state of affairs became known, but the letters have continued to be used surreptitiously, showing how dangerous it is to incautiously give testimonials. Schemes that purport to be for the benefit of hospitals cannot all be taken at their face value, and a plausible motive may be advanced to cover a fraudulent intention. The argument sometimes put forward that the hospitals will benefit if the promoters benefit means that the hospitals are at the mercy both in reputation and in pocket, of persons over whom they have no control.

Milk Supplies.

While there is almost universal sympathy with the hospitals that they should have to pay so much more for the most valuable article in their dietary and one for which there is no substitute, there appears to be some considerable difficulty in expressing it in terms of money. Possibly were the hospitals able to say that for every decrease in price they would undertake to consume more milk the problem would be largely solved. But no hospital could possibly guarantee anything of the kind. All that it could say would be that an increase in price (in some hospitals an addition of between one and two thousand pounds to its annual bill) is not likely to encourage consumption beyond that which is scientifically essential. At the same time, while science may lay down that below which there should be no attempt to go, neither science nor a generous public would condemn a hospital for a certain lavishness in the use of milk both by patients and nursing staff. The scientific minimum of both milk and butter is a poor affair compared with that to which we would all, whether sick or well, help ourselves to our physical and moral advantage, were we not troubled by questions of supply and price. It is significant too that in this matter the voluntary hospitals and the municipal hospitals are entirely at one.

Moreover, however laudable and carefully calculated the object of milk control may be, the public has some little difficulty in reconciling itself to the fact that under it a concession is made to the healthy child that is denied to his sick brother, and that the ice cream vendors and the chocolate manufacturers can get their milk at less than half the price paid by some hospitals. Matters are all the more exasperating seeing that not a few producers are willing and anxious to make special terms with hospitals and are not allowed to do so.

One difficulty may be dealt with at once. A concession to hospitals is thought to open the door wide to a host of undefined and undefinable institutions. This is one of the time-honoured arguments of chancellors of the exchequer. That, however, which has been done once can be done again and concessions have been granted upon a definition that has been found perfectly adequate for all practical purposes. Road traffic presented no difficulty—why should milk? If, however, the scheme of the Milk Marketing Board is of so delicate a character that a concession to hospitals would upset it, then let a suggestion that has been made receive careful consideration. It is that a hospital should declare the difference between its expenditure on milk subsequent to the introduction of control, and the average spent upon milk during the three years prior to control, and receive a Government rebate.

Road Traffic Accidents.

There is little to be said on the subject of road traffic accidents except that the Acts of Parliament, now that they are more or less going concerns, are producing more than was at one time anticipated. A recovery of half or more of the cost of treatment may be looked for by hospitals if an efficient system of dealing with claims is established.

The number of problems that have cropped up and that continue to crop up is surprising. Luckily hospitals have been able to arrive at working agreements without any recourse to litigation. This has been largely due to the reasonable and helpful attitude of the large insurance companies, which, although they have never regarded the Acts as particularly sound in principle, have always endeavoured to interpret them in a fair and even generous spirit. The present position has been comprehensively summed up in a revised memorandum issued by the Central Bureau of Hospital Information, which deals with the various points that have arisen and advises on points of procedure. It might not be out of place to give special emphasis to the opening paragraphs of this memorandum.*

“It is important to realise that hospitals have two quite distinct claims under the Road Traffic Acts, viz. :—

- (1) A claim for a fixed fee of 12s. 6d. for the first “emergency” treatment given to a motor accident patient at the hospital. This claim is legally recoverable solely from the person who was using the car at the time of the accident, and the claim must be made urgently, within seven days of the accident.

- (2) A claim for the expenses of treating a motor accident patient up to a limit of £50 in the case of an in-patient or £5 in the case of an out-patient. This claim is solely recoverable from an insurance company in the circumstances explained below.

3. Misunderstanding is often caused by the fact that in practice the car user's insurance company usually steps in and acts as his agent in settling the hospital's claim against him for the emergency fee of 12s. 6d. This leads hospitals to believe that their claim for this fee is directly against the insurance company, which is not the case.

4. The two claims are quite distinct and the only real connection between them is that the fee of 12s. 6d. for emergency treatment, if it has actually been received, must be deducted from the total expenses of treating a motor accident patient when calculating the claim to be made against an insurance company."

Standardisation and Group Purchase.

In spite of the interest that has been aroused in the subject in this country, little progress of a practical character has yet been made. This is due not to any failure to appreciate the importance of the subject, but to the fact that The British Hospitals Association has at the moment a very great amount of other and more important work. Indeed, as it is at present organised and staffed, much that almost clamours to be done cannot be undertaken. The first and most important task, therefore, of the Association is necessarily one of reorganisation.

To effectively deal with standardisation and a measure of group buying would occupy the entire energies of a specially qualified officer working under a proper committee. Moreover, both officer and committee would, in the special circumstances in which the voluntary hospitals always find themselves, have, to achieve any success, to carry out their task with the utmost circumspection and gradually build up, rather than attempt anything of a cut and dried character. All this requires time and patience and the resources and authority of a reorganised Hospitals Association.

The first task of such a committee would be to clear away a certain number of misconceptions. When the term "standardisation" is used it might almost be thought that those who used it had in mind a condition of society in which there was but one pattern of each article, which is only obtainable through a central purchasing department. On the strength of so depressing a picture, both standardisation and its off-spring, group buying, have been by some, not unnaturally, regarded with disfavour. Nothing of course would be further from the truth. Suppose, for example, that by joint action hospitals could by means of the bargaining powers so obtained secure their supplies of films from manufacturers on easier terms, would there be any disadvantage or loss of individuality? Other instances of a like character could be given without difficulty. So too with regard to standardisation. There are articles in common use, the patterns of which are grotesque in the number of their variations. So numerous indeed that they are a commentary upon stupidity. If those who insisted upon satisfying their unreasonable desire to be different from everyone else injured their own pockets only, not much harm would be done. But the damage does not end there. The community suffers and will continue to suffer until common sense prevails. Standardisation need lead to no loss of individuality and if properly applied would benefit both the manufacturers and the purchasers. One of the main objects of the Central Bureau of Hospital Information (which has placed its services at the disposal of The British Hospitals Association) is to bring producer and purchaser into effective contact, so that the former may know how his product works in practice (not always the same as in the laboratory) and eliminate needless variations, and the latter may obtain eventually a better article at a lower price.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

By SIR CHARLES HARRIS, G.B.E., K.C.B.

(Late Permanent Head of the Finance Department, War Office.)

Hon. Financial Consultant to the Central Bureau of Hospital Information.

THIS fifth Financial Review of Voluntary Hospital accounts for the Year-Book forms a suitable occasion for a brief retrospect. The first of the series began with strong comments on the late date of publication—the edition published in June 1932 presenting only the accounts of 1930—and pointed out that, as contrasted with the three months allowed for completion of the annual hospital accounts rendered to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, of the Provincial and Scottish hospitals included in the Tables only some 40 per cent. had sent in their figures within 6 months of the end of 1930, 76 per cent. within 9 months and 90 per cent. within ten months, leaving 10 per cent. to straggle in during November and December 1931; and an appeal was made for greater promptitude. The accounts of 1932 showed a marked advance, 72 per cent. arriving within 6 months and 98 per cent. within 10 months; and the Year-Book was published appreciably earlier, though still not before the spring of 1934. Further appeals were made in the following years not only for more punctuality, but for universal standardisation of the accounts on the "Revised Uniform System," as in London, to save the considerable labour and time lost by the editorial staff in adapting the figures as far as possible to the standard classification of income and expenditure, so as to admit of the compilation of the Tables; and hope was high that the publication of the Year-Book might shortly be advanced to the year following that to which the figures relate. Attention was also called to other essential points of the Revised System, especially the furnishing of analysed in-patient and out-patient costs of individual hospitals (Tables 16–19) to which the whole System is intended to lead up and, as a first necessary step to this, the separation in the accounts of in-patient from out-patient expenditure. It is disappointing to have to record at the end of five years that not only is there no further advance in punctuality but there is some retrogression from the standard reached in the 1934 edition, only 62 per cent. of the accounts now presented having come in by June 1935, and the hope of publication within a year having vanished for the present. Almost the only improvement visible in this edition is that 29 more hospitals than last year are included in the Tables, raising the total to 1007, though even now there are some 65 in the Directory which make no returns of figures.

Seen in the mass, the financial results of 1934 are again a striking testimony to the continued vitality of the voluntary system. An increase of £680,000 in total receipts, against one of only £150,000 in total expenditure, increased the net total surplus for the year by £530,000, bringing it to £1,453,000 as shown in the Summary on page 58; but the whole increase was on capital account, where a deficit of £107,000 in 1933 was replaced by a surplus of £451,000 in 1934; while the surplus on maintenance account, £1,002,000, showed a shrinkage of £28,000. As has been explained in earlier Reviews, under the plan on which hospitals conduct large operations such as rebuildings and extensions, without much regard to equalising the amount spent with that collected for capital purposes in a particular period, the figures for a single year are of less significance than those for income and expenditure on maintenance. Under this latter head the reduction of £28,000 may be analysed under areas as follows: London, surplus £114,000 against £256,000 in 1933; Provinces, surplus £693,000 against £636,000; Scotland, surplus £202,000 against £136,000; Total for Great Britain, £1,008,000 against £1,028,000; Ireland, deficit £7,000 against surplus of £1,000; Grand Total, £1,001,000 against £1,029,000. But these figures take no account of the fact that, owing partly to the inclusion of 29 additional (not new) hospitals in the Tables, and partly to growth of beds in others, the 1934 figures cover some 2,500 beds more than those for 1933, of which 247 were in London, while the number of London hospitals covered by the Tables dropped from 158 to 157. The alteration in beds coupled with the reduction of the surplus by £142,000 in London, reduced the surplus there per available bed to less than half the 1933 figure (from £14.7 to £6.5), and converted a surplus per available bed in Ireland of £.5 to a deficit of £1.7, while in the Provinces the surplus per bed grew from £12.6 to £13.2 and in Scotland from £14.4 to £20.8. The fact that another such year in London would wipe out the surplus entirely and leave a deficit, is not so alarming as it seems at first sight, being due to the abnormal rise of "free" legacies there in the year 1933 by some £150,000, while in 1934 they relapsed nearly to the 1932 level; Scotland, on the other hand, enjoyed an abnormal rise of some £85,000 in 1934. As will be shown further on, the entire dependence of maintenance surpluses, in all areas, on the fluctuating figures for free legacies is one of the uncomfortable features of the situation.

The magnificent net surplus of a million sterling on maintenance requires to be looked at also from another angle. It is the result of arithmetically pooling the figures of 1007 exchequers which are in fact as distinct as those of France and Germany. As a somewhat nearer approach to reality it may be stated as the net result of 744 surpluses totalling £1,309,000 and 263 deficits totalling £307,000. The corresponding figure of £1,030,000 in 1933 was the resultant of 711 surpluses (£1,281,000) and 267 deficits (£251,000). Here again the fact that in no two years do the Year-Book Tables deal with the same collection of hospitals, invalidates direct comparisons; but the percentage of the year's total (of hospitals covered) which showed surpluses rose from 73 to 74, deficits falling from 27 to 26 per cent. In London (where the number of hospitals covered was practically unchanged) the percentage of surpluses fell from 66 to 64 and their aggregate amount by £116,000; while the aggregate deficits rose by £26,000, making the total fall of £142,000 already noted in the surplus. In the Provinces, the percentage of surpluses rose from 75 to 77 and the aggregate by £78,000, but the deficiencies, despite their lower percentage, rose by £22,000. In Scotland, surpluses rose from 75 to 81 per cent. and in aggregate by £67,000, while the aggregate of deficits rose £1000; but in Ireland the percentage of surpluses fell from 60 to 45, and the aggregate surplus fell by £1000 only, while the aggregate deficit rose £7,000.

The Statistical Review of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, taking the same body of 145 hospitals for the five years from 1930 to 1934, gives the following results:—

32 hospitals had 5 surpluses each and no deficits
25	"	4	"	1
36	"	3	"	2
25	"	2	"	3
18	"	1	"	4
9	"	no	"	5

These figures are taken after the annual distribution from the Fund of a large sum (£300,000 in 1933 and 1934), most of which is credited to the hospitals' maintenance accounts. A rough calculation, for 1934, of the position before the distribution from the King's Fund (and a much smaller distribution from the Hospital Sunday Fund) shows that of the 145 hospitals only 62 (43 per cent.) in that year produced a surplus by their own efforts, 48 had deficits even after the distributions, and in 35 the distributions converted a deficit into a surplus. Outside London, no similar figures are readily available to show the extent to which annual deficits are chronic over a series of years, in individual hospitals; but the absence of a central fund is certainly no reason for expecting the results to be better. These figures thus confirm the existence of a numerous class of hospitals which I have elsewhere written of as "water-logged" by the accumulated weight (not shown in the Year-Book) of successive annual deficits.

Any further intensification of "high-pressure begging" to expand income, though it may avoid such methods as a recent notorious case revealed, must be expected to obey the law of diminishing returns; so that we have here a further example of that want in the midst of plenty which has of late attracted so much notice in other fields. In short, the clearest major conclusion to be drawn from the figures of present-day voluntary hospital finance is the necessity of some method of so distributing the more than adequate total maintenance income as to accord better with the distribution of necessary expenditure. This is not to say that those fortunate units which enjoy regular annual surpluses do not make good use of the money; but that, in the present position of the voluntary movement as a whole, the claims of less fortunate units to sufficient income to maintain a full standard of efficiency (after correcting any extravagances) should have a certain priority over the further expansion of the more fortunate. This question is doubtless attracting the attention of Lord Sankey's Commission.

As regards the several sources of income, the chief features of 1934 were again the shrinkage under the older Voluntary heads of Subscriptions, Donations and Congregational Collections and the continued growth of Services Rendered (earned income) and of receipts from Contributory Schemes. The great development of such Schemes, which now augment hospital income in varying ways, suggests reconsideration of the present classification of all such receipts under Voluntary Gifts. The true characteristic of the voluntary gift is the absence of any expectation of personal benefit to the donor. Where the weekly contributions all pass as revenue to a single hospital, it is possible to regard them as regular subscriptions of great frequency, without emphasising the expectation—there is no guarantee—that the subscriber will be admitted to the hospital, should necessity arise, without any question being raised of a payment through the almoner. But when, as in many cases to-day, the contributory scheme has its own management fund and reserves, and pays a stated sum per day for each of its members in one or other of the hospitals with which it is specially associated, and even in “outside” hospitals, though the case is still easily distinguishable from that in which the patient pays nothing until he has been admitted, it seems clear that what the hospital receives—and it is from the hospital’s point of view and not from the scheme’s that we have to deal with it—is far more a payment for services rendered than a voluntary gift dissociated from any benefit to the donor. In the Statistical Summaries of the King’s Fund, contributory scheme receipts are shown under Services Rendered; and an opportunity might now be taken of agreeing a common scheme of classification with the Fund for future use, and so obviating the lack of uniformity which now disfigures Table 4 (analysed income) in the Year-Book.

In view of the great importance in hospital finance of the free legacy, and the doubt that has been expressed as to whether there is in fact any established downward trend of these receipts at the present time, I have extended and recalculated the three years’ moving average, per available bed outside London, weighting the average more accurately according to the numbers of beds covered. The figures now stand as under:—

only £6 to £7 surviving as surplus for the year, except in the bumper year 1933, when £15 survived out of £33. In 1934, legacies again fell to £25 and the surplus to £6 per bed. In the Provinces the position is noticeably steadier, the legacies per available bed varying only between £13 and £16 (in 1934, £14), and the surplus between £10 and £15 (in 1934, practically the whole of the £14). In Scotland, legacies varied between £27 and £41 (1934, £35) and the surplus between £13 and £31 (1934, £21). The greater steadiness in the Provinces is to some extent due to the larger numbers of hospitals and legacies entering into the average. In London and even more in Scotland the leaving of important sums to the larger hospitals is a strong tradition, and the relatively small part of the total surviving as surplus may be attributed in London to the much higher level of expenditure per bed (see below) and in Scotland to the comparative paucity of other income: in 1934, £105 per bed as against £131 in the Provinces. But in each area, in the aggregate (though not, of course, for each individual hospital), the existence of a surplus depends entirely on the legacies—the least controllable of all sources of income and therefore the most dangerous if the downward trend continues.

Maintenance expenditure, as was to be expected from the changed direction of price-movements, grew everywhere, not only in bulk but also per available bed. The bulk increases shown by Table 5 are London, £125,000; Provinces, £389,000; Scotland, £57,000; Ireland £30,000; Total, £601,000; but here again the imperfections

The downward trend after 1929 is clear and unbroken; but that is not to say that the direction may not change in later years. Figures given in last year’s Review showed that in the five years from 1929, free legacies per available bed in London had varied between £24 and £33, of the Year-Book statistics deprive the figures of meaning. Although on the revenue side this year’s Tables cover 1007 hospitals as against 978 in 1933, the analysed expenditure (Table 5) covers only 874 hospitals as against 883, the reason being that large numbers of hospitals fail to classify their expenditure under the heads prescribed in the Revised Uniform System. Even the figures per available bed in the two years are not strictly comparable, as they apply to different collections of hospitals; but, taking them as they stand, they show total maintenance expenditure per available bed to have grown in London by £4.3, to £232; in the Provinces by £2.5, to £134; in Scotland by £2, to £121, and in Ireland by £3.7, to £98; the average rise being £3.1, to £152 per bed. It should be noted that these figures which, though expressed "per bed," include the expenditure on out-patients, are only to be taken as a rough-and-ready method of relating the bulk income and expenditure of hospitals to their size and growth, and are nowise to be confounded with the figures given in Tables 16 to 19 for the average costs per week of an in-patient ("occupied bed") and per attendance of an out-patient. It will be seen that the over-all expenditure per available bed in London is 73 per cent. above that of the Provinces and nearly double that for Scotland, to say nothing of Ireland. To assign definite causes to this would require laborious analysis; but it may be said at once that the high figure (average of all hospitals of whatever size) in London is closely connected with the relatively small reserve of financial strength indicated by the low average surplus there. The average increase of £3.1 in expenditure per available bed was rather evenly spread over all areas and all the principal heads of expenditure; taking all areas together, the largest rise was about 18s. per bed under Salaries and Wages; in individual areas the only rises of more than £1 per bed were: in London, £1.1 under Provisions and £2 under Salaries and Wages; and in Ireland, £1.3 under Domestic, £1.1 under Salaries and Wages, and £1.3 under "Other" items. It is apparent that the period in which the price-fall outbalanced the rises under other heads definitely ended with 1933; and the only prospect of reducing future expenditure per bed lies in constructive economies, in which sphere there are certainly unexhausted possibilities.

The most important Tables (16 to 19) of analysed costs in individual hospitals still show (outside London) the same large proportion of blank spaces. In one or two cases, hospitals have this year mended their ways; but there is no general improvement, despite the appeals made for years past. Generally speaking, where a total weekly cost per occupied bed is shown, but no details, the fault lies in failure to follow the standardised classification, and nothing can be simpler than to cure it. Where not even a total is given, the difficulty is that no separation is made in the books between in-patient and out-patient expenditure, and it is found on examination of the hospital's annual report that such figures as it may have given, purporting to be the weekly cost of an occupied bed, include in fact the out-patient expenditure and are thus merely misleading. A Governing Body which appreciates the value of these comparative costs for administrative control will not instruct—or allow—its accountant, in reply to the request annually made for separated expenditure, to "stone-wall" year after year by writing to the effect that "this separation cannot be accurately made"; while the accountant himself must be closing his eyes to such well-known facts as that the whole modern development of cost-accounting rests on apportionments of expenditure which are necessarily less rigid than a bank pass-book, that those required by the Revised Uniform System for hospital accounts are of the simplest kind, and that nineteen hospitals out of twenty make them already without difficulty. It should be noted, in addition, that the Road Traffic Acts under which hospitals make certain recoveries from Insurance Companies explicitly require the claims in respect of out-patients to be based upon the expenditure actually incurred in their treatment and in respect of in-patients upon the average daily cost for each in-patient. ["Scottish papers, please copy."]

It is only to be expected that the costs per patient in these Tables should generally reflect the rising level of expenditure, especially where the administration has reached a relatively low level of costs in past years. Thus, among the twelve great London teaching hospitals there are seven increases of weekly costs (one nominal) against five reductions, and the highest cost of 1933 is reduced, while the lowest costs are increased. In provincial teaching hospitals, there are twelve increases against four reductions and the lowest costs of 1933 are increased, though in this case, doubtless from some special cause, the highest cost is further increased by 1s. 6d. a week. Among General (non-teaching) hospitals there are still some very high figures—three of over £5 a week, which Table 14 shows to be due to lack of patients—though there is no attack on the record of 13 guineas made in 1933. For General hospitals it may be said that costs of over £4 a week in London (non-teaching) and over £3 in the Provinces, invite examination, especially when accompanied (as in many cases) by high expenditure on "finance" (largely costs of appeals, etc.), which may reach the level of

2s. per bed per day. In Special hospitals, where high rates are much more frequent, there is so much difference between the kinds of service represented by the money as to make comparisons very difficult, though in large and well-defined classes such as "Maternity" or "Children's" hospitals, comparisons within the several classes should be significant and useful.

In the sphere of road accidents, there is no progress to report. No Bill adopting the principle of Workmen's Compensation to cover pure accidents has reached the Statute Book; and there is no more accurate information available than there was a year ago, as to the actual losses still falling on the hospitals. Moreover, such figures as were sent in, by a minority of hospitals, in response to a general circular in 1933, made no distinction between two entirely different causes of loss: the large proportion of cases in which the law as it stands gives the sufferer (and therefore the hospital) no claim upon the insurer; and, where such a claim is given, possible failure on the part of the hospital to collect it. When the time comes for further legislation, the hospitals' case would be stronger if they were in a position to give complete actual figures on these points.

Recent disappointments, in this simple and non-contentious business of accountancy and statistics, have shown that the voluntary hospitals under the present organisation (or its lack) cannot be induced, by repeated appeals from the centre, to realise effectively how far the complete absence of team-spirit in a minority of units needlessly increases the heavy labours of the editor of the Year-Book and his staff, and goes far to destroy the value of the whole scheme. Before long, it may be hoped, the work of Lord Sankey's Commission will change the position and the task will be not to reiterate appeals neglected in the past, but to point the way to willing co-operation under a new and more effective organisation. The five years' experience leaves me convinced equally of the necessity of a new order and of the bright future before the hospitals if they will take to heart the lesson that strength must be sought in unity.

INCREASE OF SUBSCRIPTIONS BY MEANS OF SEVEN-YEAR COVENANTS.*

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by W. E. C. BAYNES of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

Recovery of Income Tax.

1. By virtue of the Income Tax Act, 1918, and subsequent Finance Acts it is possible for a hospital to effect a considerable increase of its income by the recovery from the Inland Revenue Department of the income tax that has been paid by its subscribers in respect of their subscriptions. To enable a hospital to do this, however, it is necessary that each subscriber should enter into a legally binding contract to pay to the hospital an annual subscription of definite amount during a period of at least seven years.

2. Seeing that the standard rate of income tax is at the present time 4s. 6d. in the £, and that the income tax recoverable is calculated on the gross value of the subscription to the hospital, the recovery of income tax by this method increases the value of the hospital's subscriptions by just over 29 per cent., without any cost to its subscribers. Table A (below) shows the benefit accruing to hospitals from these agreements for subscriptions of various amounts—so long as income tax remains at 4s. 6d. in the £.

3. It should be pointed out that a subscriber who is assessable to sur-tax will actually profit by adopting this scheme, as he will be entitled to deduct the gross amount of his annual subscription from the total income shown in his next sur-tax return.

4. These agreements are usually so drawn as to be terminated in any case by death, so that a subscriber's estate will not be liable to continue the subscription after he has died. If so desired, however, the agreement may be made for seven years certain (or any longer period), binding the subscriber's estate.

5. To give a concrete example: the subscriber covenants (in the proper form) to pay to the hospital out of his taxed income an annual subscription of, say, £5 during a period of seven years. The hospital can then claim from the Inland Revenue £1 9s. in respect of his subscription each year—so long as income tax remains at 4s. 6d. in the £. The subscription appears in the hospital's subscription list as £6 9s. The subscriber is entitled to deduct £6 9s. in his sur-tax return.

Benefit of Relief from Sur-Tax.

6. If a subscriber is subject to sur-tax and is willing to give to the hospital the benefit of the relief from sur-tax to which he is entitled by virtue of his agreement, this can be effected by his adding to the amount of his present subscription the amount of sur-tax which he would ordinarily have to pay in respect of the total amount with which he will be credited in the hospital's subscription list. Although his actual payment to the hospital will in the first place be greater than at present, he will recover this excess in relief of sur-tax, so that the actual cost to him will be the same as at present.

7. The amount by which his present subscription should be increased to effect this object will, of course, depend on the highest rate at which he is chargeable to sur-tax. How this amount can be worked out is explained in Table B (below).

8. It is worth noting that the maximum advantage of this scheme to a hospital, with income tax at 4s. 6d. in the £ and the subscriber being chargeable to sur-tax at the highest present rate, will be the transformation of a £50 subscription into one of £137 18s. 7d., and that without any additional cost to the subscriber.

Procedure.

9. The deed of covenant must first be executed; it must have a seal attached to it before signature (an ordinary adhesive seal is sufficient); and the signature of the subscriber must be witnessed.

10. The document must be stamped with an impressed (not adhesive) stamp, and for this purpose it may be sent to Somerset House, Strand, W.C. 2, or presented at a Post Office. If not stamped within 30 days of the date of its execution, Somerset House can impose a penalty up to £10 on its subsequent presentation for stamping. If not stamped, no income tax will be recoverable by virtue of this document.

11. The stamp duty is at the rate of 2s. 6d. per £100 of the total net amount (i.e. excluding the amount of income tax to be recovered) that

* We are indebted to the National Council of Social Service for several suggestions as to details of practice which have been found to facilitate the working of this scheme.

INCREASE OF SUBSCRIPTIONS BY MEANS OF SEVEN-YEAR COVENANTS

will be receivable by the hospital during the whole period; e.g. if the covenant is to pay £5 5s. annually for seven years, the stamp duty will be payable on 35 guineas and will be 1s. 3d. See Table C (below). The hospital itself usually bears the cost of this stamp.

12. Shortly before the first subscription payable under the covenant falls due, a request for payment should be forwarded to the subscriber (with a form of banker's order, if desired) accompanied by a form of "Certificate of Deduction of Income Tax," Form No. R 185, to be signed by the subscriber and returned to the hospital. See Form 3 (below). Certificate Forms may be obtained from the local Inland Revenue Officer or from the Controller of Inland Revenue, Charity Claims Department, Cornwall House, Stamford Street, London, S.E. 1.

13. The claim for the recovery of income tax may then be made in the usual way on Form No. 68 (for a first claim) or Form No. 235 (for subsequent claims). The first claim under each deed of covenant must be accompanied by the deed itself, and every claim must be accompanied by a "Certificate of Deduction of Income Tax," signed by the subscriber.

14. If the subscriber is willing to continue the payments in the same manner after the end of the period covered by the covenant, a new covenant must be entered into. The old covenant cannot be allowed to run on from year to year.

Suggestions.

15. Experience has proved that it is by no means easy to persuade subscribers to enter into these seven-year contracts, and it is suggested that the scheme should be presented to them in as simple and attractive a form as may be. The subscriber should be asked in the first place merely to execute the deed of covenant. A form of banker's order and the certificate of deduction of tax should only be sent for his signature shortly before his first subscription payable under the covenant falls due. If all these papers are sent at once, he may form an idea that the adoption of the scheme is going to cause him a lot of trouble, which is not the fact.

16. Care should also be taken to present the scheme in such a form that the hospital will obtain the benefit of the income tax recovered, and so as to avoid any chance of the subscriber of, say, £5 entering into a contract for £3 17s. 6d. only, on the ground that this is in fact a continuation of his old subscription because the hospital can recover the difference from the Inland

Revenue. Cases are known where an institution, after taking a great deal of trouble to obtain these agreements, has found in the end that it is not obtaining any more than before.

17. Although paragraphs are included (in Form 1 below) suggesting that the benefit of the subscriber's relief from sur-tax should be given to the hospital, it is not recommended that this suggestion should be made unless the scheme can be explained to the subscriber personally. As will be understood from the notes to Table B (below), if it is not known what is the highest rate at which the subscriber pays sur-tax, it will be necessary to send him a whole table, similar to Table B, but worked out for the amount of his existing subscription.

18. It should also be realised that if the rate of sur-tax or income tax is reduced, the subscriber will no longer obtain the same relief from sur-tax although he will have to continue his subscription without any corresponding deduction.

19. As regards the Deed of Covenant, it is suggested that, before this is sent to the subscriber, the hospital should affix to it an ordinary adhesive seal and fill in all the blanks in the deed so far as possible, so that there may be nothing for the subscriber to do beyond signing it and having his signature witnessed. It is also recommended that, when the deed has been received back by the hospital, a copy of it should be sent to the subscriber to be kept by him for reference in case any question arises on it.

20. Care must be taken that the date of cheque, or the date of payment by bankers' order, is later than the date of the deed of covenant.

21. If many of these covenants are entered into, it will be found a saving of time in the long run to keep a special register of them with columns for Serial Number of Covenant, Date of Covenant, Name and Address of Subscriber, Net amount Payable under the Covenant, Date when Due. The deeds should be registered in order of the date when the subscriptions are payable, a different page being reserved for each month.

Subscribers with Small Incomes.

22. Whenever a subscriber enters into a covenant to pay his subscription for a term of seven or more years, he will be required by the Inland Revenue Commissioners to pay income tax thereon at the full standard rate, even though his total income is so small that (apart from this) he would only be liable to income tax at a reduced rate or would be entirely exempt.

23. This should be carefully explained to subscribers with small incomes who are proposing to enter into such covenants. Otherwise they will naturally be annoyed when the Inland Revenue claims the standard rate of tax, and they will very likely refuse to continue the payment of the subscription and cancel the covenant—although they have no legal power to do so. If many covenants are allowed to be cancelled in this way, there is considerable danger that the whole scheme may be put an end to by further legislation.

INCREASE OF SUBSCRIPTIONS BY MEANS OF SEVEN-YEAR COVENANTS

24. On the whole it is probably wisest not to accept these covenants at all from any subscribers who do not pay income tax at the standard rate on a sufficient part of their income to cover the amount of their subscriptions.

Covenants by Companies and Firms.

25. There is nothing to prevent a business company or firm from entering into a seven-year covenant to pay a subscription to a hospital, but it is difficult to see how it could be so arranged that the hospital would be able to recover income-tax on it, because a business company or firm only pays income-tax on its "profits" and the subscription cannot be paid after the profits for the year have been ascertained, as the accounts have then already been closed. If the subscription is paid during the course of the year, then it is part of the expenditure which is deducted from the receipts, and no income-tax is paid on it. In practice therefore it seems that such a covenant would be ineffectual for its purpose.

FORM 1.

SUGGESTED LETTER OF INVITATION TO SUBSCRIBERS.

DEAR SIR,

As you are already so good as to send us an annual subscription of £5, we are writing to invite you to enable us to transform your subscription into one of £6 9s. without the need for any payment by yourself beyond the continuance of your present subscription.

If you are willing to sign the enclosed form of covenant undertaking to continue your present subscription of £5 for the next seven years, the hospital will be able to recover from the Inland Revenue Department the sum of £1 9s. each year (being the amount of income tax you will already have paid in respect of your subscription). The amount of your subscription in the list of our Subscribers will then appear as £6 9s. This agreement is terminable by death, so that your estate would not be liable for subsequent payments.

If you are assessable to sur-tax your adoption of this scheme will actually be of advantage to yourself, as you will be entitled to deduct £6 9s. from the total income shown in your sur-tax return. The claim for such deduction may be worded "Less £6 9s. charitable annuity payable to the ..... Hospital, under deed of covenant dated the ..... 193...."

If you should be so generous as to wish to allow the hospital the benefit of the amount of sur-tax from the payment of which you will be relieved, you can effect this by filling up the deed of covenant, not for your present subscription of £5, but for the sum appearing in column (4) in the table below * opposite the highest rate of sur-tax at which you are charged. As the difference between your present subscription and the amount you now enter in the deed of covenant will then be saved by you when paying your sur-tax, you will realise that the actual cost to yourself under this scheme will be no more than it is at present, while the hospital will reap a substantial advantage.

If you are so good as to adopt either of the above proposals, will you kindly fill in and sign the enclosed form of covenant, being sure to have your signature witnessed, and return it to me.

Yours faithfully,

* If the invitation is sent in this form, the highest rate of sur-tax payable by the subscriber not being known, it will be necessary to send him a table similar to Table B worked out for the amount of his existing subscription.

FORM 3.

SUGGESTED LETTER TO SUBSCRIBER TO ACCOMPANY FIRST CERTIFICATE OF DEDUCTION OF INCOME TAX.

DEAR SIR,

I am writing to remind you that you have been so good as to sign an agreement to continue your subscription of £5 to this Hospital during seven years, and that your subscription has usually been paid about the beginning of next month.

Before the Hospital can recover the income-tax on this subscription the Inland Revenue Department requires a Certificate of Deduction of Income Tax to be signed by you.

Will you kindly fill in and sign the enclosed certificate and return it to me with your subscription.

A form of banker's order is also enclosed in case you care to make use of it, and so save yourself further trouble.

Yours faithfully,

Notes.

It will save trouble and delay if this form is filled in strictly in accordance with the ideas of the Inland Revenue Department. It is therefore advisable to fill in as many of the details as possible at the hospital, in case the subscriber fills them in incorrectly.

It will be seen that in each case the sur-tax on the figure in column (6) is identical with the figure in column (3), so that the subscriber will be relieved from sur-tax to the exact amount by which his subscription has been increased.

The figures for a subscription of any other amount will be in the same proportion, e.g., for a subscription of 1 guinea, all the figures in columns (3) to (7) should be divided by 5 and for a subscription of 20 guineas they should all be multiplied by 4.

In the event of the tax rates being altered, the amount by which any particular subscription requires to be raised (column (3)) may be found for any rate of income tax and any rate of sur-tax from the formula :

$$\frac{az}{20 - x - z}$$

where a represents the present subscription, x the income-tax rate (in shillings), and z the sur-tax rate. E.g., if the existing subscription is £50, the income-tax rate 4s. in the £, and the subscriber's highest sur-tax rate 3 $\frac{3}{10}$ s. in the £, then the necessary increase of the existing subscription will be :

$$£ \frac{50 \times 3\frac{3}{10}}{20 - 4 - 3\frac{3}{10}} = £12 \ 19s. \ 10d.$$

The amount to be entered in the deed of covenant will therefore be £62 19s. 10d. The income tax recoverable by the hospital will be at the rate of 4s. in the £ on the gross value of the annual subscription to the hospital, i.e., at the rate of 4s. for every 16s. contained in £62 19s. 10d., or  $\frac{1}{4}$  of that sum, which is £15 14s. 11d. The actual value of the subscription to the hospital will therefore be £78 14s. 9d., and on this amount the subscriber will be entitled to relief from sur-tax at the rate of 3 $\frac{3}{10}$ s. in the £, or £12 19s. 10d., which is identical with the amount by which his annual subscription will have been increased.

(Memorandum No. 38 was published in 1931.)

DEDUCTIONS FROM WAGES OF CONTRIBUTIONS TO CONTRIBUTORY SCHEMES

Owing to a recent decision in the Courts,* the question has been raised by several hospitals whether it is allowable to make any deduction from the wages of workmen for the payment of their contributions to contributory schemes, or whether this is prohibited by the Truck Acts.

The real object and effect of the Truck Acts is to prevent employers from paying their workmen in kind instead of in coin, and (with certain specified exceptions) from making any deductions from wages for their own (the employers') advantage.

It is quite clear that deductions from wages, if made at the request and with the consent of the workmen and paid over by the employers to a scheme unconnected with the employers' firm, is not an infringement of the Truck Acts.

But, as a general rule, if the workman is under any sort of compulsion from his employers to allow such a deduction to be made, or of course if the continuance of his employment depend upon his agreement to such a deduction, then this would constitute an infringement of the Truck Acts.

* Kenyon v. Darwen Cotton Manufacturing Co., Ltd., reported in The Times of Feb. 15th, 1936. In this case the Court of Appeal decided that it is an infringement of the Truck Acts for a company to make compulsory deductions from the wages of its employees for the payment of shares in the company which all employees were obliged to take up as a condition of their employment.

THE WORK OF A HOSPITAL ALMONER*

DUTIES.

THE work of a Hospital Almoner is determined by the Board or Medical Committee responsible for her appointment, and may include :

I. ADMINISTRATIVE SIDE.

1. To prevent the attendance of patients who may be properly referred for treatment to a private or panel doctor or to the Public Assistance Authority.
2. To collect additional hospital benefits from approved societies.
3. To ensure the smooth working of a Contributory Scheme, where such is in operation.
4. To assess patients' payments towards the cost of their treatment and maintenance.
5. To collect the fees from patients in paying wards.

II. IN CO-OPERATION WITH THE MEDICAL STAFF.

1. To arrange convalescence, special care being taken to meet the needs of individual patients.
2. To arrange for the supply of surgical instruments and appliances recommended by the medical staff. To secure that as far as possible payment for these should not be made out of hospital funds.
3. To see that surgical instruments and appliances are properly worn and kept in repair.
4. To arrange for the attendance of the district nurse at patients' homes.
5. To arrange for the admission to suitable Homes of chronic and incurable patients.
6. To assist patients to obtain diet or extra nourishment.
7. To report to the medical staff, when desired, on patients' home circumstances and history.
8. To deal with patients' difficulties at home in order to contribute towards their ease of mind and consequent recovery.
9. To facilitate in any way the carrying out of prescribed treatment.
10. To undertake investigation for research, if desired.

III. CO-OPERATION WITH OUTSIDE BODIES.

1. To co-operate with the Public Health Authorities in cases of Tuberculosis and in Maternity cases.
2. To co-operate with the School Authorities in cases of children of school age.
3. To enlist the help of the Public Assistance Authorities and charitable societies when help is required for individual patients.

THE SELECTION AND TRAINING OF STUDENTS.

This summary of the duties of a hospital almoner indicates the wide scope of the work. It is clear that women of character and personality are required, and that they will need special training for this branch of social service.

The Institute of Hospital Almoners has always required a high standard of its students. It is desirable that candidates should have had a sound education up to the age of 18 with a background of general culture. In practice it is found that the work appeals very greatly to women who have had a University education, and also to some who have held other posts and who seek wider scope for their energies and sympathies.

* Contributed by the Institute of Hospital Almoners.

OBJECTS OF THE INSTITUTE.

- 1.—To select, train and arrange for the training of suitable candidates for the work of Hospital Almoners.
- 2.—To grant certificates to trained and qualified students.
- 3.—To keep a register of trained Almoners.
- 4.—To recommend trained Almoners to Hospital Authorities.
- 5.—To extend and develop the work of Hospital Almoners.

THE WORK OF A HOSPITAL ALMONER

THE TRAINING.

Every candidate for the training is interviewed by a Selection Committee, and before the interview spends two days in an Almoner's office in order to see something of the work.

Candidates should be between the ages of 19 and 35, and should have previously had a good education. No certificate is granted below the age of 22.

The training provided by the Institute normally covers a period of three years, as follows :—

First and Second Years.

Students are required to qualify for a Social Study Diploma or Certificate at a recognised University School of Social Study. The theoretical work in this includes the following Social Science subjects : social philosophy and psychology, social economics, social and industrial history, public administration. In addition some elementary knowledge of physiology is required of Almoner students. Practical work is undertaken during the course under the direction of the Tutor. Almoner students are required to do four months general family casework, of which two consecutive months must be spent in full-time work under the London Charity Organisation Society.

Third Year.

Eleven months practical work at Hospital under the guidance of a Certificated Almoner, a minimum of two months must be spent in a Hospital outside the London area.

The above course of training may in certain cases be shortened for candidates who are able to satisfy the Executive Council that they already hold qualifications covering part of the course.

1. Candidates who already hold a Social Studies Certificate or Diploma may be accepted for a period of eleven months Hospital training, provided that they have completed practical work accepted by the Institute as the equivalent of four months Charity Organisation Society training.
2. Graduates with qualifications, satisfactory to the Executive Council in Social Science subjects may be accepted for a course of fifteen months practical training which will include four months with the Charity Organisation Society, or a recognised equivalent, and eleven months in an Almoner's office.
3. Graduates who do not come into category 2 may be accepted for two years training, comprising one session (three terms) at a University School of Social Study and fifteen months practical work as above.

Throughout the course the work requires the student's full time. In all cases the eleven months at Hospital must be spent at approved Hospital Training Centres, with a minimum of three months Hospital and two months Charity Organisation Society work in London.

Students accepted for training after the beginning of the University session may, in certain cases, be allowed to do four months Charity Organisation Society and two months Hospital work before their first academic session, and two months Hospital work during the long vacation.

TRAINING IN CENTRES OUTSIDE LONDON.

Selection and Advisory Committees have been appointed in connection with the Universities at Birmingham, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Leeds, Liverpool and Newcastle. The whole of the academic work and part of the practical training can be undertaken in these centres, but all students are required to take part of their practical training in London. London students are required to take at least two months of their Hospital training in a Hospital outside London. Claims for exemption from part of the training under clauses (2) and (3) (see above) will be determined by consultation between the Local Committee concerned and the Executive Council.

CERTIFICATES.

Certificates are granted to students who have passed the University examinations and who have obtained satisfactory reports on their practical work. The Executive Council reserves to itself the right to extend or to terminate a student's training at any time should the reports on her work be unsatisfactory.

FEES.

Theoretical Work.

Fees for the Diploma or Certificate course are paid direct to the University concerned and vary from about thirty to sixty guineas for the two years' course.

Practical Work.

In the case of students accepted by the London Committee, the fee payable to the Institute is fifteen guineas, together with five guineas for four months C.O.S. training. For students accepted by local Selection and Advisory Committees the fee is approximately the same, with slight variations.

ROAD TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS.

CLAIMS FOR EXPENSES OF TREATMENT UNDER THE ROAD TRAFFIC ACTS.

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by W. E. C. BAYNES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

1. THIS Memorandum has been prepared to embody and replace all the previous Memoranda issued on the subject of the Road Traffic Acts, viz. Nos. 39 (with three addenda), 70 (with addendum), and 88, and to bring them up to date.

2. It is important to realise that hospitals have two quite distinct claims under the Road Traffic Acts, viz. :—

- (1) A claim for a fixed fee of 12s. 6d. for the first "emergency" treatment given to a motor accident patient at the hospital. This claim is legally recoverable solely from the person who was using the car * at the time of the accident, and the claim must be made urgently, within seven days of the accident.
- (2) A claim for the expenses of treating a motor accident patient up to a limit of £50 in the case of an in-patient or £5 in the case of an out-patient. This claim is solely recoverable from an insurance company in the circumstances explained below.

3. Misunderstanding is often caused by the fact that in practice the car user's insurance company usually steps in and acts as his agent in settling the hospital's claim against him for the emergency fee of 12s. 6d. This leads hospitals to believe that their claim for this fee is directly against the insurance company, which is not the case.

4. The two claims are quite distinct and the only real connection between them is that the fee of 12s. 6d. for emergency treatment, if it has actually been received, must be deducted from the total expenses of treating a motor accident patient when calculating the claim to be made against an insurance company. See paragraph 40.

PART I

CLAIMS FOR EMERGENCY TREATMENT.

5. The Road Traffic Act, 1934, s. 16, provides that when emergency treatment is first given at a hospital to any person injured in a motor accident, the hospital shall be entitled to recover from the person using the car at the time the sum of 12s. 6d. in respect of each person so treated. If the patient has been treated or examined by a doctor on the road previously to his admission to hospital, the fee is payable to the doctor and not to the hospital.

6. "Emergency treatment" is defined as medical or surgical treatment or examination which is immediately required as a result of bodily injury. From this it appears that whenever the victim of a motor accident is taken to a hospital without having been treated or examined by a doctor on the road, then the hospital can claim the 12s. 6d. fee. It is immaterial whether the victim is subsequently treated as an in-patient or as an out-patient.

7. The meaning of the expression "the person using the car" may be open to doubt in some cases. If the car-owner is in the car at the time of the accident he is obviously the person using it, whether driving it himself or not. In the case of a commercial car with an employee driving, his employer is presumably the person using it. In the case of a taxi-cab, the claim should be made against the driver in the first place, but the question of liability may depend on whether he is the owner of the taxi or on what terms he is driving it.

8. The case of two or more cars being involved in the same accident is not specifically provided for, but presumably the claim for the fee may be made against the user of any car involved in the accident.

9. The great majority of accident insurance offices have, however, agreed amongst themselves which office shall ultimately be responsible for the payment of the fee in certain cases. As a result of this agreement it is anticipated that the claims of hospitals will be promptly met if they are made against the persons mentioned below :—

- (a) Where the injured person was in or on a car—against the user of that car.
- (b) Where the injured person was not in or on a car—against the user of the car which actually struck him.

* Throughout this Memorandum "car" is used as a general term intended to cover every form of motor vehicle, including motor coaches, tractors, motor cycles, etc.

ROAD TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

(c) In other cases, or where the facts are not clear, the full claim should be made against the users of all the cars involved.

If this procedure is followed, much unnecessary correspondence may be avoided.

10. The only cars the users of which are exempt from the payment of this fee are :

(1) A motor vehicle belonging to a government department.

(2) An invalid carriage, i.e., one specially designed for use by a person suffering from physical disability, and used solely by him.

(3) A tram car or trolley vehicle the use of which is authorised by special Act of Parliament or Order.

Local authorities are not exempted from payment of the fee except in respect of cars falling within the above exceptions.

11. There is no restriction as to the persons in respect of whose treatment the fee of 12s. 6d. can be claimed. It is payable in respect of any person injured in the motor accident who receives emergency treatment whether he is the driver himself, a passenger, a pedestrian, or whoever. And the fee is payable in respect of each person treated, however many persons may be injured in one accident.

12. The hospital should not make this claim against the insurance company. The hospital's claim is solely against the user of the car. The user's liability for the fee has to be covered by insurance, but this does not give the hospital any direct right against the insurance company except in the case of the user of the car becoming bankrupt. In practice, however, the user of the car generally passes on the claim made against him to his insurance company so that the claim is often in fact paid by the latter.

13. The claim for payment may be made to the user of the car either orally at the time when the treatment is given, or by a request in writing signed by an executive officer of the hospital and stating the name and address of the hospital, the circumstances in which the emergency treatment was given, and that it was first given at that hospital. For suggested form of claim, see paragraph 45.

14. If the request is made in writing, it must be served within seven days of the emergency treatment either by delivery to the user of the car or by prepaid registered letter addressed to him at his usual or last known address. It would be advisable to serve this written request in every case when the fee is not paid immediately on a verbal request being made.

15. A chief officer of police is bound to supply the hospital, on request, with any information which he has as to the identification marks of any car involved in the accident and as to the identity and address of the person using the car.

16. The fee of 12s. 6d., if actually received by a hospital, operates as a discharge up to that amount of any other claim that the hospital may have in respect of the emergency treatment. The effect of this provision is explained in paragraphs 37 et seq.

PART II

CLAIMS FOR EXPENSES OF TREATMENT AGAINST INSURANCE COMPANIES.

17. The Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 36 (2), as amended by the Act of 1933, provides that in certain cases, when an insurance company* has made a payment to a person injured in a motor accident and that person has received treatment at a hospital, then the insurance company must also make a payment to the hospital in respect of the costs of that treatment.

18. There is nothing in the Act to prevent a hospital from exercising any other rights it may have, apart from the Act, of recovering the expenses of treatment in any other way. See paragraph 48.

* Throughout this Memorandum the term "insurance company" is intended to include persons who are, in effect, authorised to be their own insurers on depositing £15,000 with the Supreme Court as a guarantee fund.

Hospitals which are Entitled to Payments.

19. Payment for the expenses of treatment of victims of motor accidents can be claimed by any hospital that is "an institution which provides medical or surgical treatment for in-patients." This definition would appear to include hospitals which only provide nursing and accommodation, leaving the patients to arrange with their own doctors to attend them—at any rate where there is any medical staff who would ordinarily deal with any emergency cases that might come in.

Conditions under which Hospitals can Claim.

20. The right of a hospital to obtain a payment from an insurance company for the expenses of treatment of the victim of a motor accident depends on the following conditions being fulfilled :

- (a) The victim must be* either (i) a person who was not in the car that was responsible for the accident, or (ii) a person who was a paying passenger in the car.
- (b) The insurance company must have made a payment to the victim or to his dependents in respect of his personal injury or death.
- (c) This payment must have been made under or in consequence of a policy that has been taken out to meet the requirements of the Act.
- (d) The victim must have received treatment at the hospital either as an in-patient or as an out-patient.

21. "A person who was not in the car that was responsible for the accident" of course includes any person in any other car that is involved in the same accident, as well as a pedestrian, a rider, etc. The question of responsibility for an accident is often most difficult to decide, especially when more than one car is involved, but fortunately hospitals need not concern themselves with this point as it will be decided for them. See paragraph 25.

22. As it is always difficult for a hospital to be certain whether it has a good claim for the expenses of treatment in respect of each individual victim or not, it is recommended that notice should be given to insurance companies concerned of every motor accident victim that is treated at the hospital. For forms of notice and claim, see paragraphs 46 and 47.

Cases in which Hospitals have no Claim against Insurance Companies.

23. It will be seen from paragraph 20 (a) that claims can only be made in a very restricted class of cases. Thus, hospitals cannot recover from insurance companies for the expenses of treatment of the owner or driver of the car responsible for the accident, nor of the car-owner's friends or employees being driven in the car.

24. In the following cases, as the victim will receive no payment from any insurance company, the hospital will not have any claim against an insurance company under the Act, namely, when the accident has been caused by :

- (a) An uninsured car, or a car that is uninsured at the time owing to its being stolen or used without authority :

* This follows from the provision in the Act that the payment to the victim must be made "under or in consequence of a policy issued under the Act," as these are the only persons the liability to whom is required to be insured against under the Act.

- (b) A car owned by a government department, a local authority † or a police authority.
- (c) An invalid carriage, i.e., a small car specially designed for use by a person suffering from some physical disability, and used solely by such person.
- (d) A tram car or trolley vehicle the use of which is authorised by a special Act of Parliament or Order.

Payment by Insurance Company to the Victim or his Dependents.

25. It is often asked whether it is necessary to prove the negligence of the car-driver before the hospital can recover a payment from the insurance company. The answer is that the hospital is not concerned with any question of negligence, but must merely ascertain whether any payment to the victim or his dependents has in fact been made by the insurance company under its policy; if such a payment has been made, but not until it has, then the insurance company must also make a payment to the hospital in respect of that victim's treatment.

26. In point of fact the insurance company will only make this payment to the victim either (1) if it is agreed, or has been decided in Court, that the car owner or driver insured by this company was responsible for the accident, or (2) if the responsibility is not proved or admitted, but the insurance company, in order to avoid legal proceedings, makes a payment to the victim by way of compromise of his claim—called an "ex-gratia payment" or "compassionate grant."

27. The Act specially provides that it is immaterial whether the insurance company makes the payment to the victim with or without an admission of liability. An ex-gratia payment therefore entitles the hospital to a payment for the expenses of treatment.‡

† Although not under any legal obligation to make payments to hospitals, a local authority may be expected to meet any reasonable request for a refund of expenses of treatment of a victim to whom that authority has incurred a liability.

‡ Some insurance companies have contended that an ex-gratia payment is not made "under or in consequence of a policy," but this contention cannot be maintained. The point has only arisen because in practice the insurance company usually deals directly with the injured person and agrees with him what sum is to be paid in respect of his injuries. This practice has led to the true legal position being obscured. Legally speaking, the injured person's only claim is against the car-driver (i.e., the assured person), and the insurance company's only liability is to indemnify the car-driver against this claim. When, therefore, the insurance company makes any payment to the injured person it is really acting as agent for the car-driver; but this is not the payment that is made under the policy. The payment made under the policy is the repayment by the insurance company to the car-driver of the sum that the latter has paid

28. It must be remembered that, so long as no payment has actually been made to the victim by the insurance company, but is merely offered or under consideration, the hospital has no claim against the company.

29. The payment by an insurance company of the fee of 12s. 6d. for emergency treatment is not such a payment under or in consequence of a policy as will entitle the hospital to claim a payment from the insurance company under the Act of 1930.

Expenses of Treatment that can be recovered.

30. The claim of a hospital against an insurance company is limited to £50 for in-patient treatment or £5 for out-patient treatment.

31. Claims for In-patient Treatment. Subject to the limit of £50, a hospital can claim, in respect of an in-patient, an amount for each day such person is maintained in the hospital equal to the average daily cost for each in-patient of the maintenance of the hospital and its staff and the maintenance of in-patients.

32. This average daily cost of an in-patient is arrived at by taking the hospital's total annual expenditure on the maintenance and treatment of in-patients, and dividing this figure by the total of daily counts of in-patients. This necessitates hospital accounts being kept in such a way as to distinguish between the expenses of in-patient and out-patient treatment.

33. No additional charge can be made for an operation or any special form of treatment.

34. It has been suggested that the Act might allow a hospital to pay its medical staff special fees for attending motor-accident cases and to add the amount of these fees to the costs of treatment to be recovered from an insurance company, but it is quite clear that the Act does not permit of this being done.*

35. Claims for Out-patient Treatment. Subject to the limit of £5, a hospital can claim, in respect of an out-patient, the reasonable expenses actually incurred in his treatment. This involves the keeping of hospital records in such a way as to enable hospitals to separate the cost of the different services rendered in the out-patient department, e.g., an X-ray examination, a massage, a surgical dressing, etc., so that an account may be rendered to an insurance company showing the cost of the services actually rendered to an individual patient.

(by his agent the insurance company) to the injured party. It does not matter what the payment that is agreed to be made by the car-driver to the injured person may be called, but the insurance company necessarily makes a payment "under or in consequence of the policy" to indemnify the car-driver against this payment.

* There is, of course, nothing to prevent a hospital from making such payments as it chooses to its medical staff in respect of road accident cases, and any such fees can be included in the total maintenance expenditure of the hospital in respect of all in-patients. In the result, the average daily cost of maintenance will obviously be increased, but as road accident cases are only a small proportion of all in-patients, it will only be increased by a very small amount.

36. In order to avoid the necessity for this costing, however, nearly all accident insurance offices have agreed to make payments to hospitals for the out-patient treatment of motor accident victims in accordance with the following schedule—which has been accepted by a large number of hospitals as a fair estimate of the actual expenses incurred, viz.:

First attendance (including dressings, splints, etc.)	†	5	0
		or
		12	6
Subsequent attendances (including simple dressings and inspections)		2	0
X-Ray Examinations (per each examination)		10	6
Out-patient Operations under general anaesthetics	1	1	0
Out-patient Operations under local anaesthetics		7	6
Massage (per attendance)		2	0
Electrical Treatment (per attendance)		2	0

† Where the emergency treatment fee of 12s. 6d. is payable, this will be paid in lieu of the 5s. for the first treatment; and subsequent attendances and treatment will be paid for up to a limit of £5.

37. Deduction of Moneys Received. Whether the claim made is for in-patient or out-patient treatment the Act provides that any moneys actually received by the hospital in payment of a specific charge for a patient's treatment must be deducted from the total expenses incurred when making up the account for presentation to the insurance company. But it is specially provided that moneys received under any contributory scheme are not to be so deducted.

38. It seems obvious that a purely voluntary payment to a hospital by a patient in return for his treatment is not a receipt in payment of a specific charge.

39. It must be understood that any sum received in payment of a specific charge is to be deducted from the total expenses of treatment. Hospitals can then recover the remainder of such expenses up to the maximum of £50 in the case of an in-patient or of £5 in the case of an out-patient.

40. Thus, for example, if the hospital has recovered 12s. 6d. for emergency treatment and the total expenses in connection with an in-patient amount to £50 12s. 6d. or more, the deduction of the 12s. 6d. from that amount will still leave an amount of £50 payable to the hospital by the insurance company. If the expenses amount to £50 7s. 6d. the deduction of 12s. 6d. will leave the hospital entitled to claim £49 15s. The same principle applies as regards the expenses for treatment of an out-patient, but in connection with the specific charge for emergency treatment see the Note to the Schedule in Paragraph 36.

41. In order to avoid unnecessary correspondence, every claim made against an insurance company should state clearly whether the hospital gave the patient emergency treatment or not; and if so, whether the fee has been received or not; and if it has, that the amount of 12s. 6d. has been deducted from the total expenses of treatment when making out the claim against the insurance company.

PART III

PROCEDURE IN MAKING CLAIMS.

42. It is recommended that, whenever the victim of a motor accident is brought to a hospital, information should at once be obtained from the police as to the registration numbers of all cars involved in the accident, the names and addresses of their owners, and the names of the insurance companies by which they are insured against third-party risks.

43. It is often found in cases where the emergency fee is payable that the police do not supply the information quickly enough to enable the claim for the 12s. 6d. fee to be made within seven days of the accident. In these cases it is advisable to ask the police to supply in the first place only the names and addresses of the car users, explaining that the information is required urgently, and why.

44. If a car owner has not produced his insurance certificate to the police at the time of the accident, but is to produce it at some police station, the local police should be asked to communicate at once with that police station and ask it to note the name of the insurance company when the certificate is produced there.

45. The claim for the fee of 12s. 6d. for emergency treatment, to be sent * to the user of the car within seven days of the accident, may be in the following terms :

I beg to inform you that A.B. was injured on the ..... day of ..... in a road accident in which a car used by you was involved, and that A.B. was first examined and treated for such injury at this hospital.

I shall therefore be much obliged if you will send me the sum of 12s. 6d., being the fee due from you to the hospital in respect of such examination and treatment under s. 16 of the Road Traffic Act, 1934.

46. For the purpose of making a claim against an insurance company under s. 36 (2) of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, as soon as any motor accident victim is treated at the hospital a preliminary notice should be sent to the company—or to each insurance company if more than one car is involved in the accident—which may be in the following terms :

Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 36 (2)

I beg to inform you that A.B. is being treated at this Hospital as an in-patient (or out-patient) for injuries incurred in a road accident in which car No. .... belonging to X.Y. was involved. I understand that X.Y. is insured against third-party risks by a policy issued by your company, and I shall be much obliged if you will let me know if and when you make any payment under or in consequence of that policy to A.B. or his dependents or to any other person or company in respect of his injuries.

47. As soon as the victim has completed his treatment, or as soon as the expenses of his treatment as an out-patient amount to £5 (or to £5 12s. 6d. if the hospital is entitled to the 12s. 6d. fee for emergency treatment), or as soon as the expenses of his treatment as an in-patient amount to £50 (or £50 12s. 6d.), a formal claim for the expenses of treatment should be sent to the insurance company concerned, which may be in the following form :

With reference to my previous letter to you dated the ..... I now beg to inform you

For an out-patient : that A.B. has been receiving treatment at this Hospital as an out-patient, and that the expenses of such treatment (in accordance with the agreed Schedule) amount to £..... as is shown by the enclosed account.

* See paragraph 14.

ROAD TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

For an in-patient : that A.B. has been treated at this Hospital as an in-patient from the ..... day of ..... to the ..... day of ....., i.e., for ..... days; that the average daily cost per in-patient of the maintenance of this hospital and its staff and the maintenance and treatment of its in-patients is .....s. .....d.; and that the total expenses of the in-patient treatment of A.B. therefore amount to £.....

This Hospital also provided emergency treatment for this patient, but the fee of 12*s.* 6*d.*, which is due from X.Y. in respect of such treatment, has not yet been paid, and I understand from X.Y. that you will pay this fee to the Hospital on his behalf.

Or, This Hospital also provided emergency treatment for this patient, and the fee of 12*s.* 6*d.* in respect of such treatment has already been received by the Hospital from X.Y.

Or, This Hospital did not provide emergency treatment for this patient.

I shall therefore be much obliged if you will now pay the sum of £..... to this Hospital, being the amount due from you under s. 36 (2) of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, as amended (and also the fee of 12*s.* 6*d.* payable by you on behalf of X.Y. under s. 16 of the Road Traffic Act, 1934, making a total of £.....).

48. It should be noted that the Road Traffic Acts do not in any way deprive hospitals of any rights they already possess. Hospitals which have the power of charging their patients for treatment may find it more profitable to proceed at Common Law instead of making any claim under the Act of 1930 (as amended). The method of recovering costs of treatment in this manner is outlined in Memorandum No. 54.

APPENDIX.

RELEVANT SECTIONS OF THE ROAD TRAFFIC ACTS.

ROAD TRAFFIC ACT, 1930

(as amended by Section 33 of the Act of 1933.)

36. (2) Where any payment is made (whether or not with an admission of liability) by

- (a) an authorised insurer under or in consequence of a policy issued under this Part of this Act; or
- (b) the owner of a vehicle in relation to the user of which a security under this Part of this Act is in force; or
- (c) the owner of a vehicle who has made a deposit under this Part of this Act, in respect of the death of or bodily injury to, any person arising out of the use of a motor vehicle on a road or in a place to which the public have a right of access, and the person who has so died or been bodily injured has to the knowledge of the authorised insurer or such owner as the case may be received treatment at a hospital, whether as an in-patient or as an out-patient, in respect of the injury so arising, there shall also be paid by the authorised insurer or such owner to such hospital the expenses reasonably incurred by the hospital in affording such treatment, after deducting from such expenses any moneys actually received by the hospital in payment of a specific charge for such treatment, not being moneys received under any contributory scheme;

Provided that the amount to be paid by the authorised insurer or such owner shall not exceed fifty pounds for each person so treated as an in-patient, or five pounds for each person so treated as an out-patient.

For the purposes of this sub-section the expression "Hospital" means an institution (not being an institution carried on for profit) which provides medical or surgical treatment for in-patients and the expression "expenses reasonably incurred" means :—

- (a) in relation to a person who receives treatment at a hospital as an in-patient, an amount for each day such person is maintained in such hospital representing the average daily cost for each in-patient of the maintenance of the hospital and the staff thereof and the maintenance and treatment of the in-patients therein; and
- (b) in relation to a person who receives treatment at a hospital as an out-patient, reasonable expenses actually incurred.

ROAD TRAFFIC ACT, 1934.

16. (1) Where medical or surgical treatment or examination is immediately required as a result of bodily injury (including fatal injury) to any person caused by, or arising out of, the use of a motor vehicle on a road, and the treatment or examination so required (in this section referred to as "emergency treatment") is effected by a registered medical practitioner, the person who was using the vehicle at the time of the event out of which the bodily injury arose shall, on a claim being made in accordance with the provisions of the next succeeding section, pay to the practitioner, or where emergency treatment is effected by more than one practitioner, to the practitioner by whom it is first effected:—

- (a) a fee of twelve shillings and sixpence in respect of each person in whose case the emergency treatment is effected by him.

(2) Where emergency treatment is first effected in a hospital (that is to say, an institution, not being an institution carried on for profit, which provides medical or surgical treatment for in-patients), the provisions of the foregoing subsection with respect to the payment of a fee shall, so far as applicable, have effect with the substitution of references to the hospital for references to a registered medical practitioner.

17 (1) A chief officer of police shall, if so requested by a person who alleges that he is entitled to claim a payment under the last foregoing section, furnish to that person any information at the disposal of the chief officer as to the identification marks of any motor vehicle which that person alleges to be a vehicle out of the use of which the bodily injury arose, and as to the identity and address of the person who was using the vehicle at the time of the event out of which it arose.

(2) A claim for a payment under the last foregoing section may be made at the time when the emergency treatment is effected, by oral request to the person who was using the vehicle, and if not so made must be made by request in writing served on him within seven days from the day on which the emergency treatment was effected.

(3) A request in writing must be signed by the claimant or, in the case of a hospital, by an executive officer thereof, must state the name and address of the claimant, the circumstances in which the emergency treatment was effected, and that it was first effected by the claimant, or, in the case of a hospital, in the hospital.

(5) A sum payable under the last foregoing section shall be recoverable as if it were a simple contract debt due from the person who was using the vehicle to the practitioner or the hospital.

(6) A payment made under the last foregoing section to a practitioner or hospital shall operate as a discharge, to the extent of the amount paid, of any liability of the person who was using the vehicle, or of any other person, to pay any sum in respect of the expenses or remuneration of the practitioner or hospital of or for effecting the emergency treatment.

(7) A payment under the last foregoing section shall not be deemed to be a payment by an authorised insurer or owner for the purposes of sub-section (2) of section thirty-six of the principal Act.

SEPARATION OF EXPENDITURE BETWEEN IN-PATIENTS AND OUT-PATIENTS.

THE method of separation of the expenditure on In-patients from that on Out-Patients recommended in "The Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts"* is quoted below by kind permission of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London.

The expenditure on Out-patients as distinct from that on In-patients must be ascertained. As far as possible this should be done by the identification and separation of the items of Expenditure, but where such analysis is impracticable, by careful estimates and apportionments. The following General Considerations are added for the guidance of Hospital Secretaries:—

General Considerations.

- (i) The principle of separation or apportionment (as the case may be) should be applied to every item of expenditure. Where, as sometimes happens, the expenditure would have been the same in amount if only one department had benefited, this fact does not justify the whole of such expenditure being charged to that one department.
- (ii) Wherever an actual separation of expenditure is not practicable, an apportionment should be made on some definite basis capable of being stated and justified.
- (iii) Where apportionments are made, they should be based on a consideration both of the In-patient share of the expenditure and of the Out-patient share. It may be taken as a general principle that it is unsafe to base apportionments upon a consideration of one department only and then to deduct the result from the total, without also approaching the question from the point of view of the other department and seeing whether the results fairly correspond.
- (iv) Where it is not practicable to make a permanent separation or to keep continuous separate records, and where approximations are therefore necessary, it may often be possible to effect a separation, or to keep separate records, for a short period, and thus to provide an experimental test for determining, or checking, the basis of apportionment.

A basis of apportionment thus arrived at should be reconsidered from time to time to see whether it is giving reasonable results, or whether it is affected by any changes that may have taken place since it was adopted. In some items the relative cost of the two departments may vary from year to year with changes in the relative numbers of patients—in others, it may be affected by new developments or by special expenditure in particular years.

Provisions.

- (v) With regard to Provisions, the apportionment of board of officers will naturally follow the apportionment of their Salaries or Wages.

Surgery and Dispensary.

- (vi) With regard to drugs, etc., dispensed and surgical bandages and dressings used, it will often be found that there is no real difficulty in the actual separation of the issues between those used for the In-patients and those used for the Out-patients. Sometimes this can be done, as is already done in some of the larger Hospitals, by having separate stores and dispensaries for In- and Out-patients; or, in the smaller ones, by keeping and serving in one dispensary the drugs used for the two departments in different parts of the room. It often happens also that it is convenient to dispense for the In-patients at times of the day when the demands of the Out-patient Department are not required to be dealt with; this procedure would reduce the probability of drugs, etc., set aside for one department being used for the other. Where the actual separation of supplies is not practicable, it may be possible to keep continuous records of the drugs, dressings, etc., supplied to In-patients and Out-patients respectively. Where this is not practicable, some definite principle of apportionment should be adopted, subject to periodical careful revisions.
- (vii) The following are examples of methods of separation or apportionment actually in operation at various Hospitals:—
  - (a) Complete separation by means of different dispensaries or different parts of the same dispensary.
(This method is recommended wherever practicable.)
  - (b) Apportionment according to the numbers of issues to In-patients and Out-patients, respectively, after charging to In-patients certain items special to In-patients.

SEPARATION OF EXPENDITURE BETWEEN IN-PATIENTS AND OUT-PATIENTS

(If it may be assumed, or if it is found by experiment, that prescriptions for In-patients and for Out-patients, respectively, represent on an average an equal value, this method is unobjectionable.)

- (c) Separation of cost by means of continuous records of drugs, etc., supplied to In-patients.
- (d) Apportionment based on the average cost of drugs, etc., supplied to In-patients, arrived at by records kept for sample periods.

(Methods (c) and (d)—where, as may often be the case, it is not practicable to check them by experimental calculations in respect of Out-patients—have the material disadvantage of throwing upon the Out-patient Department the whole cost of any loss that may occur through waste, error, or otherwise.)*

Domestic and Establishment (Renewals and Repairs.)

- (viii) The Out-patients being usually treated in a part of the Hospital separated, to some extent, from that used for the In-patients, it will generally be practicable to separate the accounts of the cost of Repairs and Renewals of the Fabric, of Furniture, Hardware, etc., from the similar expenditure for the In-patient Department; while, in the cases where the buildings or plant are used indiscriminately, an apportionment can be made. Washing, Cleaning, Water, Fuel and Lighting can, in most cases, be separately treated without much difficulty; and, where this cannot actually be done, an apportionment should be made.
- (ix) At some Hospitals, water is apportioned according to rateable value or by separate meters; at others, according to the relative area of the two departments. Fuel is sometimes apportioned according to area or cubic contents, sometimes according to the number of radiators; electric light by separate meters, by the number of lamps or the hours during which the light is used. Furniture, bedding and linen, and hardware, etc., are very generally separated, as also are Establishment Renewals and Repairs.

Salaries and Wages (Maintenance).

- (x) Where the officials are different there is no difficulty in separating the cost of their salaries and wages. Where the duties of the two departments are performed by the same staff, or where any officer gives part of his time to each, an apportionment should be made. Such apportionments are made, at the majority of the Hospitals, on the principle of work done, the basis adopted being very generally the relative number of hours worked by each official for the benefit of each department. The salaries of supervising officers are sometimes apportioned according to the total apportionments of the salaries of their subordinates.
- (xi) The basis of apportionment once arrived at for the salaries of officials serves also for the cost of various services rendered to the officials either by way of remuneration or by way of assistance: e.g., for board and lodging, uniform, laundry, service, upkeep of quarters, etc., etc.

Administration of Finance.

- (xii) The expenditure under these heads is very generally common to the two departments, and should, in those cases, therefore, be apportioned (as will, e.g., often happen with rent). Where there is no special reason in favour of any other basis, these apportionments may properly be made on the basis of the relative cost of the two departments resulting from the separation and apportionment of the more direct expenses which appear under Provisions, Surgery and Dispensary, Domestic, Salaries and Wages, and Miscellaneous. This method has already been adopted at many Hospitals. In some cases, however, the principle set out above in section (i) of the "General Considerations" has apparently been overlooked.

* The following additional methods appear to have been tried at various hospitals but are considered to be undesirable, as they are not calculated to lead to reliable results:—

- (e) Apportionment according to the relative numbers of In-patients and Out-patients.
- (f) The same as (e), but reckoning each In-patient as equivalent to some fixed number of Out-patients.
- (g) Apportionment according to the total number of days' supply of medicine to Out-patients as compared with the total number of days' residence of In-patients.
- (h) Apportionment arrived at by multiplying the average cost per prescription by the number of Out-patients.

INCORPORATION OF HOSPITALS.

Kindly prepared for the Bureau by W. E. C. BAYNES, of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law.

Advantages of Incorporation.

The main advantages of incorporation are that the hospital's constitution is thereby definitely determined, the powers and duties of the members and officers of the hospital are clearly defined, and the hospital becomes a legal entity, able to hold its property in its own corporate name (instead of only in the name of trustees), and capable of entering into contracts, suing and being sued, in its own name.

Incorporation under the Companies Acts.

The most usual method of incorporating a hospital is under the Companies Acts, which is the way in which an ordinary commercial limited company is formed. Permission can be obtained from the Board of Trade for the hospital to dispense with the use of the word "limited" as part of its name.

Under these Acts a hospital can be incorporated as a body limited either by shares or by guarantee. Hospitals are generally limited by guarantee, which is usually fixed at one guinea per member.

The proposed memorandum and articles of association of the hospital have to be submitted for the approval of the Board of Trade, for which a fee of five guineas is charged.

Other fees and stamps would probably amount to about £8, but the fees vary according to the number of members. In two recent cases the total cost of incorporation, including all legal expenses, was approximately £95 and £120 respectively.

Incorporation by Royal Charter.

Incorporation by Royal Charter can only be obtained in exceptional circumstances. The procedure is by petition to the King, presented to the Privy Council.

The fees payable, if the charter is granted but not otherwise, are £102 15s. 6d. and a further sum of £1 7s. 6d. in respect of every additional name (after the first) appearing in the charter. In addition to these fees there will, of course, be the legal costs of preparing the petition and the charter, etc.

Incorporation by Act of Parliament.

Incorporation may also be effected by the promotion of a private Act of Parliament. This is an expensive method and is seldom now adopted.

Incorporation of trustees.

If it is only desired to avoid the necessity for a legal transfer of land, buildings and securities whenever a new trustee is appointed, the object may be attained by incorporating the trustees of the hospital under the Charitable Trustees Incorporation Act, 1872. This is effected by the Charity Commissioners.

Under this Act the trustees are incorporated as "The registered Trustees of the ..... Hospital" and have a corporate seal. On the death of a trustee, a new trustee is appointed in his place in accordance with the hospital's rules, i.e. usually by a mere resolution of the board of management, but no legal document is necessary for the transfer of securities or other property, as these remain in the trustees' corporate name.

This method has been adopted by several hospitals with satisfactory results. The Charity Commissioners do not thereby acquire any control over the hospital or its management. The application to the Commissioners for incorporation requires to be impressed with a 10s. Inland Revenue stamp. The total cost of this incorporation in one actual case was about £35.

Position of Unincorporated Hospitals.

No Legal Status. An unincorporated hospital is not recognised as a legal entity, that is to say, it cannot sue or be sued or hold any property in its own name. All funds, land, buildings, etc., are the joint property of all the members of the hospital for the time being, but, of course, they can only deal with the property in the interests of the hospital.

All property must be held for the hospital in the names of trustees, and in court proceedings the hospital will be represented by some of its officers, who will sue or be sued in their own name.

acting on behalf of all the members of the hospital.

Members of Committees. Members of the board of management or of any other committee of an unincorporated hospital, when acting on behalf of the hospital, are legally in the position of agents for whatever body of persons has appointed them, and all questions of liability on contracts entered into by them, and so forth, will be determined by the ordinary law relating to principals and agents.

Trustees. Trustees for an unincorporated hospital are in the position of agents in relation to the body of persons which has appointed them.

In relation to beneficiaries, they are in the same position as any other trustees.

Position of Subscribers. If subscribers to the funds of a hospital act as members, and vote for the members of the board of management and so on, it seems that they would be liable as principals in respect of all contracts entered into by their express or implied authority.

Ordinary subscribers, who merely subscribe without doing anything further, are very much in the position of the founders of a charity, and are entitled to require that the money they have subscribed shall be applied in accordance with the hospital's foundation deed or regulations.

MESSAGE DEPARTMENTS.

WHETHER OR NOT EVENING SESSIONS ARE CONSIDERED NECESSARY.

Summary of replies to an enquiry sent to 42 large Provincial Hospitals.

At only 15 out of the 42 hospitals are evening sessions held. Particulars of the days and hours of the sessions are as follows :—

Hpl.	Days and Hours when open.	Remarks.
1	Monday–Friday, 5.30–7.30.	For men and women at work during the day.
2	Monday–Friday until 8 p.m. (for past 17 years).	Between 20 and 30 patients each evening.
3	Three evenings per week.	Between 20 and 30 patients attend. The arrangement is of great assistance to those able to work.
4	Thursdays : 5.30–6.30 for women . 6.30–7.30 for men .	An average of 20 patients per evening.
5	Tuesdays and Fridays, 5.30–8.30.	Well attended by work-people unable to attend during the day. Appreciated by patients.
6	Three evening sessions per week of two hours each.	For patients at work during the day. Arrangement has only been operating 6 months. Average attendance 9 to 12. "A very real need has been met."
7	Evenings, 5–8.	Department is run on the appointment system and the staff of six work to a schedule.
8	Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, 5–7.	Always sufficient patients to keep 2 masseuses working on two evenings and 1 masseuse on the other two evenings.
9	Department open from 8.30 a.m. to 7 p.m.	Great advantage to the patients. The masseuses taking late duty are off duty in the afternoon. Their hours average 36½ per week.
10	Two evenings per week.	Average of 6 patients.
11	Mondays and Fridays, 5–8, for male patients . Wednesdays, 5–8, for female patients .	Average number of patients 25. Average number of patients 16.
12	Three evenings, 7–9.	For patients at work during the day. Arrangement commenced at the beginning of the year and is found to meet a real need.
13	Open until 7.30 two evenings per week.	About 100 patients per week treated at these clinics.
14	Every evening.	For patients who are unable to attend during the day.
15	Department kept open each evening until 6 p.m. for male patients.	No request for evening treatment from women patients.

Note.—Two of the above hospitals take the view that it is necessary to guard against the exploitation of evening clinics at the expense of the day clinics.

Of the 27 hospitals where the department is not open in the evenings :

- 14 stated that there has been no demand,
- 2 stated that the experiment was tried and abandoned as it was found there was no need,
- 2 stated that the arrangement would be very beneficial to the patients.
- 1 stated that an outside masseuse is willing to treat patients at 1s. 6d. per hour.

At only one was the cost given as the reason for not opening in the evenings.

At others, workers attend the day clinics by appointment and consequently reduce the loss of working time to a minimum.

THE REVISED UNIFORM SYSTEM OF HOSPITAL ACCOUNTS AS A BASIS FOR COMPARISON BETWEEN HOSPITALS.

BY J. ROWSE MITCHELL, Secretary, Chester Royal Infirmary.

Every Administrator must at some time have turned in despair from the comparative tables in the Hospitals Year-Book, baffled by variations of cost between his hospital and the others. The following table reveals the extent of such variations :—

HOSPITALS WITHOUT MEDICAL SCHOOLS, CONTAINING 200 OR MORE BEDS.

Average Cost of each In-Patient per week.

	Cost.
	Highest.	Lowest.
Provisions ... ..	s. d. 12 2	s. d. 7 9
Surgery and Dispensary	11 8	3 3½
Domestic... ..	13 5	6 9½
Salaries and Wages ...	29 8	13 11
Miscellaneous ... ..	2 10	4½
Administration ... ..	4 5½	1 4
Establishment ... ..	4 4½	6
Finance ... ..	5 6	2

A questionnaire issued to these hospitals brought prompt and full replies, which are gratefully acknowledged.

Reasons for some of the differences were immediately apparent. Gifts in kind are included in the accounts of only half of the hospitals, and the amounts charged vary from £80 to £1,250. Methods of dealing with cash received from the sale of kitchen refuse and dispensary sundries, charges for special drugs, grants towards the cost of appliances, and payments made in respect of private practice in special departments are all dealt with in different ways. Amounts paid under the heading of medical salaries also vary largely, and are differently dealt with. The average number of staff per available bed varies from 0·7 to 1·0, or a difference of 30 members per 100 beds in the total number of staff. One hospital with 250 beds stands on eight acres, while another with 360 beds stands on two acres. Some hospitals manage their own contributory schemes or have appeal departments, and show the expenses as expenditure, while others deduct such expenses from income; others again receive grants from outside bodies.

The Revised Uniform System cannot eliminate all variable factors, and these make comparisons unreliable. When variations of practice are also present, comparisons are impossible.

It is not too much to say that comparison is essential, that the highest degree of efficiency cannot be reached by units working alone, and that consultation is not enough.

Does the Revised Uniform System provide the best basis of comparison? The Central Bureau of Hospital Information is issuing memoranda on questions such as numbers and sizes of X-ray films used, electric current and gas consumed, and crockery breakages per available bed; while the Northern Association of Hospital Secretaries has made similar investigations. Consideration of these memoranda suggests that it is the work of the department which governs consumption.

The amounts of gas and electric current used are of small importance unless the uses to which they are put are known. The cost of dressings and bandages is of less use than are particulars of where they are used. Heavy expenditure on uniform may be due to the excessive use of rubber gloves in the operating theatres.

These points suggest that a complete classification of expenditure by departments would provide a better basis of comparison between hospitals. Departmental costings are referred to under the present system but are little more than an accretion. Would the analysis of accounts on this basis prove too complicated to be worth while? The initial investigations would undoubtedly mean work, but so do all new schemes. Would allocation between departments of stores purchased be possible, or would accounts need to contain entries of purchases and issues? The answer would be different in institutions of different sizes. In every case, it should be possible to devise a workable scheme.

When set on foot, the additional work should not be considerable, while the results would surely make it worth while. To compare the costs, for instance, of the main kitchen, operating theatres, X-ray and pathological departments, and boiler house in different institutions should be both enlightening and stimulating to the keen hospital worker.

The Revised Uniform System of Hospital accounts is, in essentials, the creation of 1906. It is suggested that reconsideration is necessary.

Every administrator knows that the time to do a necessary thing is the present; that delayed action is inaction and leads to inefficiency. Time and work are necessary; if they are the price of efficiency, why should they not be spent forthwith?

EXPLANATORY NOTES

THE object of this Survey is the presentation in as full detail as possible of the position of the Hospitals in Great Britain and Ireland with reference to certain special features which may be summarised thus :—

- (a) The facilities available for treatment,
- (b) The extent to which they are utilised,
- (c) The annual cost of maintaining these facilities, and
- (d) The sources and extent of the funds by which they are maintained.

Arrangement of Tables.

In the main tables the Voluntary Hospitals are grouped under the headings :—

Group A. Hospitals having 100 or more beds.

Group B. Hospitals having 30 to 99 beds.

Group C. Hospitals having less than 30 beds.

In addition, Tables of the details of the work and finances of the following special groups are given :—

Adjustments to figures.

An attempt has been made to present the figures of all hospitals upon the basis of the Revised Uniform System of Hospital Accounts. Slight divergences from the figures published in the Annual Reports of a few hospitals will consequently be found.

The figures in the Tables giving particulars of groups of hospitals include the returns made by a few hospitals covering a period longer than 12 months. This is generally due to some such cause as the changing of the date of the termination of the official year.

Definition of London area.

For the purposes of the Statistical Tables and the Directory of Voluntary Hospitals, London is regarded as the area covered by King Edward's Hospital Fund for London, viz., 11 miles from St. Paul's Cathedral. This area includes portions of the counties of Essex, Hertfordshire, Kent, Middlesex and Surrey in addition to the whole of the County of London. Similarly, all hospitals under the control of the London County Council are grouped together, whether they are situated in the County of London or not.

"Available" beds of London hospitals.

The figures of "available" beds of the London hospitals are the average daily bed complement during the year after deducting beds temporarily closed for Rebuilding, Extensions, Repairs, or other causes.

Thanks.

The Editors desire to express their thanks to King Edward's Hospital Fund for London for the leave, so kindly granted, to use the figures in its Statistical Report on the London hospitals for the purpose of compiling the Tables which appear in the Year-Book ; to all those Chairmen and Officers of the Voluntary Hospitals who so kindly supply the information upon which the statistics are compiled, and to the Public Authorities who also most kindly give particulars concerning the institutions for which they are responsible.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR NURSES.

I. CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH HOSPITALS ARE APPROVED AS TRAINING SCHOOLS.

II. SCHEMES UNDER WHICH NURSES MAY BE TRAINED FOR ADMISSION TO THE STATE REGISTER.

CONDITIONS UNDER WHICH HOSPITALS ARE APPROVED AS TRAINING SCHOOLS.

BEFORE any hospital or group of hospitals can be approved the authorities of such hospitals are required to submit to the General Nursing Council particulars as to—

- (a) training material available;
- (b) the variety of experience assured to each probationer;
- (c) in the case of grouped hospitals information as to the hospital in which each variety of experience is to be obtained, and
- (d) the educational facilities offered and the systematic arrangements made whereby the attendance of each probationer at a series of lectures on the prescribed subjects is assured.

(1) For Training in General Nursing.

(a) As a Complete Training School.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it provides experience in the four main services—medical, surgical, gynaecological, and children's diseases, and also an adequate staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

That it has at least one Resident Medical Officer.

That the period of training is not less than three years.

In a hospital where the work is mainly surgical approximately one-third of the beds should be devoted to medical work.

In a hospital where the work is mainly medical, approximately one-third of the beds should be devoted to surgical work.

(b) Associated Hospitals.

- (i) There are other hospitals which are sufficiently large but from deficiency of clinical material in some branch cannot be approved as Complete Training Schools. Such hospitals will be required to associate themselves with another hospital or hospitals in order to supply for their nurses that part of the training in which they are deficient.

The hospitals applying for approval under this category must each have a Resident Medical Officer.

The period of training must extend over three years and six months, of which not less than six months must be spent in the hospital which is supplying the deficiency of clinical material.

The Council is prepared to consider any scheme for carrying out such an arrangement, and it will be for the hospitals who propose to associate themselves to satisfy the Council that the arrangements will be adequate to afford a complete training.

- (ii) The Council is prepared to consider schemes whereby a general hospital for men only, one for women only, and one for children only, may respectively work together to furnish the necessary training according to the prescribed Syllabus. The period of training may be divided amongst the three hospitals as may be convenient, provided that adequate training in the four main services is assured, and that the subjects of the Preliminary Examination (see Preface to Syllabus of Subjects for Examination) are taught in the first hospital to which the nurse goes for training, so far as they can be taught in that hospital. The training in this case extends over four years if the Council so decide.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Associated Hospitals."

(c) Affiliated Groups of General Hospitals.

There are many hospitals which are not sufficiently large to provide adequate clinical material, teaching staff, and equipment for complete training, but these may be approved in affiliation with a hospital of the kind dealt with in Regulation (1) (a) above.

The period of training must extend over four years, of which the first two years must be spent in the smaller hospital in preparation for the Preliminary Examination. The Probationers should be transferred to the larger hospital for the final two years, after passing the Preliminary Examination.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR NURSES

The Council is prepared to consider any scheme for carrying out such an arrangement, and it will be for the hospitals who propose to affiliate themselves to satisfy the Council that the requirements for a four years' training are fulfilled by the scheme proposed.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Affiliated Hospitals."

(d) Affiliated Groups of Special and General Hospitals.

Nurses trained for two years in approved Special Hospitals as mentioned below will be eligible for the Final Examination for the General Part of the Register when they have undergone a subsequent two years' training in a General Hospital as defined in (1) (a).

The two years' training in the Special Hospital must include the subjects of the Preliminary Examination. This examination must be taken from the Special Hospital.

Fever, Gynæcological, Ophthalmic, Ear and Nose, Cancer, Incurable, Orthopædic, Tuberculosis, Urinary Diseases, Venereal Diseases, Nervous Diseases, Children's Diseases, and (provided that the applicant has had training in bedside nursing for not less than six months) Mental Diseases.

In exceptional cases, on the recommendation of the Education and Examination Committee, and after detailed consideration of each case, the Council may permit nurses to proceed from a Special to a General hospital forthwith after passing the Preliminary Examination, or under special conditions (after completing one year's training) and after remaining for the two ensuing years at the said General Hospital to return to the said Special Hospital for the completion of the fourth year of training, but that no such permission be granted unless the authorities of the Special Hospital satisfy the Council:—

(a) that the training of such nurses will be adequately continued; and

(b) that the nursing of their patients presents difficulties which form a claim for special consideration.

Such hospitals will be entitled "Affiliated Hospitals."

(2) For Training in Male Nursing.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Male Nurses and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years in a Complete Training School for Male Nurses;

or

four years in an Affiliated Training School for Male Nurses;

or three and a half years in an Associated Training School for Male Nurses.

(3) For Training in Mental Nursing, and for Nurses for Mental Defectives.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Mental Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years, including not less than six months bedside nursing as detailed in Section IV, Part I, of the Syllabus of Subjects for Examination, before the candidate enters for the Preliminary Examination.

Note.—Those Institutions which cannot provide sufficient bedside nursing for their staff can do so by arrangement or by affiliation with a General Hospital, subject to the approval of the Council.

(4) For Training in Sick Children's Nursing.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Sick Children's Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than three years.

There should be at least one Resident Medical Officer.

(5) For Training in Fever Nursing.

(a) As a Complete Training School.

The hospital must satisfy the Council that it furnishes adequate material for the training of Fever Nurses, and provides the requisite staff and equipment for teaching in accordance with the prescribed Syllabus.

The period of training must be not less than two years.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR NURSES

(b) As an Affiliated Training School.

The Council is prepared to consider a scheme by which a Fever Hospital which has not sufficient material to afford a complete training may affiliate itself to a Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

The period of training under this category must be not less than two years and six months, of which not less than one year must be spent at the Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

The Preliminary Examination must be passed before the nurse enters the Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

Notes.—(1) The General Nursing Council considers that it would be greatly in the interests of the training of nurses if preliminary training schools could be instituted in various centres through England and Wales.

(2) In every case the Institution where the training takes place must be "either an Institution approved by the Council in that behalf, or in the service of the Admiralty, the Army Council, or the Air Council." (Nurses' Registration Act 1919, 3(2) (b).)

THE GAP BETWEEN LEAVING SCHOOL AND ENTERING THE NURSING PROFESSION.

THE League of Remembrance (1914-1919), so well known to many hospitals since the days of the Great War for the help it has afforded them in the gratuitous making of hospital garments and kindred necessities, has now undertaken a further responsibility.

It has adapted one floor of its headquarters in Bryanston Square, London, W. 1, for the reception of waiting candidates. These are young women who have been accepted for training as nurses but are not yet old enough to enter a hospital. In former years many girls have left school with a zeal for service which has led them to adopt the Nursing Profession for their life's work. During the months of waiting to begin their work the enthusiasm of some has waned—others, perhaps, have decided to take a year's course of domestic training, or fresh interests have deflected them from their chosen career.

The League of Remembrance offers an occupation which keeps steadfastly before them their desire to enter a hospital. Their days are spent largely in the workrooms where hospital dressings are made and despatched. They learn to make them, and also surgeons' overalls, nightdresses, infants' clothes, ward equipment, in short, all the necessities of hospital linen stores, with which they will soon be practically familiar. The League also initiates them into the mysteries of stock-keeping, of linen stores, of chandlery stores, and of still-room work. The working day of these "candidates" as they are termed, is thus adjusted between hours of active and of sedentary work.

The special quarters for candidates have been designed on the plans of ships' cabins. Each cabin contains a comfortable bunk, a basin fitted with constant hot and cold water, a wardrobe, complete with shoe rack and hat shelf, a stool, oak bookcase and oak chest of drawers and bedside rug. The colour scheme, carried out in the porthole curtains, the flowered chintz, counterpanes, and the electric light shades, is a restful blue.

For their duties the candidates have to provide themselves with brown overalls and caps, of which the League undertakes the laundry. It also gives £1 a month to each as pocket-money (deducting National Health Insurance). A special Sister-in-Charge is attached to the staff to supervise their work and welfare.

Expansion is contemplated in the direction of bridging a still wider part of the "gap" which exists, so that it is hoped that not only hospital matrons will avail themselves of the facilities offered to these young women, but that school authorities will also bring the scheme to the notice of their pupils.

Full particulars and application forms can be obtained from: Mrs. E. H. Gibson, C.B.E., Honorary Administrator, The League of Remembrance (1914-1919), 49, Bryanston Square, London, W. 1.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE BRITISH X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE.

FOURTH REVISED REPORT (JUNE 1934).

WITH the object of arresting the sequence of casualties to X-ray and radium workers, the British X-ray and Radium Protection Committee was formed in 1921, as the result of co-operative action between the Royal Society of Medicine, the Röntgen Society, the British Association for the Advancement of Radiology and Physiotherapy (now the British Institute of Radiology incorporated with the Röntgen Society), the Institute of Physics, the Radium Institute, London, and the National Physical Laboratory. The personnel of the Committee was afterwards widened to include representatives from the provincial schools.

The Committee issued its first recommendations in July 1921. Successive revised reports followed in December 1923 and May 1927. At the instance of the British Committee, International Recommendations for X-ray and Radium Protection were adopted at Stockholm in 1928 by the Second International Congress of Radiology. These were largely based on the British proposals.

The problem of adequate protection for the X-ray worker has been substantially eased by the introduction of the self-protected tube and more recently by the "shock-proof" tube and equipment. Account is taken of this in the present (Fourth) Report of the British Committee, which follows in the main the form of the International Recommendations, and contains a number of alterations and additions based on the experience of the Committee and of the National Physical Laboratory in its inspection and testing work carried out in association with the Committee.

Copies of the Report may be had on application to the Hon. Secretaries of the Protection Committee at 32, Welbeck Street, W.1, or the Director, The National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, Middlesex.

PROTECTIVE MEASURES.

The protective measures recommended are dealt with under the following sections :—

- I. Introduction.
- II. Working Hours and other Conditions.
- III. General X-ray and Radium Recommendations.

- IV. X-ray Protective Recommendations.
- V. Electrical Precautions in X-ray Rooms.
- VI. Film Storage Recommendations.
- VII. X-rays for Industrial and Research Purposes.
- VIII. Radium Protective Recommendations.
- IX. Electrical Precautions with Electro-medical Apparatus.
- X. Ultra-violet Therapy.
- XI. General.

I. INTRODUCTION.

1. The dangers of over-exposure to X-rays and radium can be avoided by the provision of adequate protection and suitable working conditions. It is the duty of those in charge of X-ray and radium departments to ensure such conditions for their personnel. The known effects to be guarded against are :—

- (a) Injuries to the superficial tissues;
- (b) Derangements of internal organs and changes in the blood.

2. The evidence at present available appears to suggest that under satisfactory working conditions a person in normal health can tolerate exposure to X-rays to an extent of about 0.2 international röntgens (r.) per day. On the basis of continuous irradiation during a working day of seven hours this figure corresponds to a dosage rate of  $10^{-5}$  r. per second. The protective values given in these recommendations are generally in harmony with this figure under average conditions. No similar tolerance dose is at present available in the case of radium gamma rays.

II. WORKING HOURS AND OTHER CONDITIONS.

3. The following working hours, etc., are recommended for whole-time X-ray and radium workers :—

- (a) Not more than seven working hours a day. Whole-time X-ray and radium workers should not be called upon for other hospital service.
- (b) Not more than five working days a week. The off-days to be spent as much as possible out of doors.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE

- (c) Not less than four weeks holiday a year, preferably consecutively.
- (d) No person should be employed as an X-ray or radium worker whose blood (as tested by a complete investigation of the blood), or general health, is unsatisfactory.

Before beginning work or training, the normal leucocyte level should be found by making three total and differential blood-counts in the afternoon. (The counts may be made on different afternoons, or on the same afternoon at half-hourly intervals.) If none of the total counts reach 6,000 per c.mm. and none of the lymphocyte counts reach 1,200 per c.mm. the applicant should not be accepted for service.

Periodical total and differential blood-counts of the worker should be made during the afternoon period, every six months in the case of the X-ray worker, and every three months in the case of the radium worker. The six-month period may be considerably extended in the case of X-ray workers in departments which otherwise comply with the Recommendations of the Protection Committee.

If at any time there is found to be a decided and sustained drop in either the total leucocyte or the total lymphocyte count the worker should cease work and be placed under treatment for an adequate period. On resumption of work every care should be taken and the circumstances of the work should be reviewed so as to prevent a recurrence.

III. GENERAL X-RAY AND RADIUM RECOMMENDATIONS.

4. X-ray and radium departments should not be situated below ground-floor level. Damp rooms should be avoided.

5. All rooms, including photographic dark rooms, should be provided with windows, affording good natural lighting and ready facilities for admitting sunshine and fresh air whenever possible.

6. All rooms, including photographic dark rooms, should be provided with adequate exhaust ventilation capable of renewing the air of the room not less than ten times an hour. Low-level air inlets and high-level outlets should be arranged to afford cross-wise ventilation of the room.

7. All rooms should preferably be decorated in light colours.

8. A working temperature of about 18° to 21° C. (65° to 70° F.) is desirable in X-ray rooms.

9. X-ray rooms should be large enough to permit a convenient lay-out of the equipment. A minimum floor area of 250 sq. ft. (25 sq. m.) is recommended for X-ray rooms, and 100 sq. ft. (10 sq. m.) for dark rooms. Ceilings should be not less than 11 ft. (3.5 m.) high.

10. X-ray generating apparatus employing mechanical rectifiers should preferably be placed in a separate room from the X-ray tube.

IV. X-RAY PROTECTIVE RECOMMENDATIONS.

11. An X-ray operator should on no account expose himself to a direct beam of X-rays.

12. An operator should place himself as far as practicable from the X-ray tube. It should be borne in mind that if valve tubes are used improperly they may produce X-rays.

13. The X-ray tube should be self-protected, or otherwise surrounded as completely as possible with protective material of adequate lead equivalent.*

14. The following lead equivalents are recommended under average conditions :—

(A) DIAGNOSTIC WORK.

15. In the case of diagnostic work with other than completely protected tubes, the operator should be afforded protection from stray radiation by a screen of a minimum lead equivalent of 1 mm.

16. Screening examinations should be conducted as rapidly as possible with minimum intensities and apertures. The material of the

* It should be pointed out that the protective lead values of certain materials are much affected by a change in the exciting voltage of the X-ray tube. This applies particularly to materials in which elements lighter than lead furnish the chief protection. In the case of protective slabs or plasters made up of mixtures of materials, the difficulty of securing uniform mixing should be met by a generous margin of safety in estimating the required thickness. As a rough working rule, solid brick and concrete are equivalent to about 1 per cent. of the same thickness of lead.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE

diaphragm should be equivalent to not less than 2 mm. of lead. The diaphragm should be of the rectangular type and the design should be such as to permit it to be completely closed. To prevent the lateral escape of direct radiation, the diaphragm should be fitted within a protective enclosure. Palpation with the hand should be reduced to the minimum.

17. The lead glass of fluorescent screens should have the protective values recommended in paragraph 14.

18. In the case of screening stands, the fluorescent screen should, if necessary on account of the small size of the screen, be provided with a protective "surround" so that adequate protection against direct radiation is afforded for all positions of the screen and diaphragm.

19. Screening couches and stands should provide adequate arrangements for protecting the operator against scattered radiation from the patient. In the case of a couch, this can take the form of a protective screen, mounted on the carriage and of material equivalent to not less than  $\frac{1}{2}$  mm. of lead. The screen should have a width of not less than 2 ft., and should project 9 or 10 in. above the couch. In the case of a screening stand, an "apron" of protective material not less than 2 ft. wide and of not less than  $\frac{1}{2}$  mm. lead equivalent should be attached to the lower edge of the screen.

20. Protective gloves, which should be suitably lined with fabric or other material, should have a protective value not less than  $\frac{1}{8}$  mm. lead throughout both back and front (including fingers and wrist). Protective aprons should have a minimum lead value of  $\frac{1}{2}$  mm.

(B) TREATMENT.

The use of some form of calibrated ionisation dose-meter during treatment is strongly recommended.

21. In the case of X-ray treatment, the operator should be stationed outside the X-ray room behind a protective wall, the lead equivalent of which will depend on the circumstances. In the case of a single X-ray tube excited by voltages up to about 200 kv., the protective wall should have a lead equivalent of not less than 2 mm. For higher exciting voltages or more than one X-ray tube, or for heavy tube-currents, the wall protection should be proportionately increased. The wall protection should also be increased if the protective value of the X-ray tube enclosure falls short of the values given in paragraph 14. In such event the remaining walls, floor and ceiling may also be required to provide supplementary protection for adjacent occupants to an extent depending on the circumstances.

22. Inspection windows in screens and walls should have protective lead values equivalent to that of the surrounding screen or wall.

23. In those cases in which an X-ray tube is continuously excited and treatment periods are regulated by means of a shutter, some form of remote control should be provided for the shutter to ensure that the operator is not exposed to direct radiation while manipulating the shutter or filter.

Efficient safeguards should be adopted to avoid the omission of a metal filter in X-ray treatment.

V. ELECTRICAL PRECAUTIONS IN X-RAY ROOMS.

Attention should be drawn to the fact that with the more powerful X-ray plants in use to-day the possibilities of fatalities are increased.

24. The floor-covering of the X-ray room should be of insulating material such as wood, rubber, or linoleum. Rubber-soled shoes form a useful supplementary precaution.

25. Where permanent overhead conductors are employed they should be not less than 9 ft. (3 m.) from the floor. They should consist of stout metal tubing or other coronaless type of conductor. The associated connecting leads should be of coronaless wire kept taut by suitable rheophores.

26. Wherever possible earthed guards or earthed sheaths should be provided to shield the more adjacent parts of the high-tension system. Unshielded leads to the X-ray tube should be in positions as remote as possible from the operator and the patient. The use of "shock-proof" X-ray equipment in which the high-tension circuit is completely enclosed in earthed conductors is specially recommended. In all cases, however, indiscriminate handling of X-ray tubes during operation should be forbidden. Unless there are reasons to the contrary, metal parts of the apparatus and room should be efficiently earthed.

27. Main and supply switches should be very accessible and distinctly indicated. They should not be in the proximity of the high-tension system, nor should it be possible for them to close accidentally. The use of quick-acting, double-pole circuit breakers is recommended. Over-powered fuses should not be used. If more than one apparatus is operated from a common generator, suitable high-tension multi-way switches should be provided. In the case of some of the constant-potential generators, a residual charge is held by the condensers after shutting down. A suitable discharging device should therefore be fitted. Illuminated warning devices which operate when the equipment is "alive" serve a useful purpose. Printed first-aid instructions dealing with electrical shock are available* and the staff should be trained in their use.

28. Some suitable form of kilovoltmeter should be provided to afford a measure of the voltage operating the X-ray tube. Whenever possible a safety spark-gap should be provided.

29. Low flash-point anæsthetics should never be used in conjunction with X-rays.

VI. FILM STORAGE PRECAUTIONS.

30. The use of non-inflammable X-ray films is strongly recommended. In the case of inflammable films, the following precautions should be taken as regards their use and storage.

31. X-ray Rooms.

(a) In all rooms where X-ray films are handled and stored naked lights and open fires should be prohibited. Smoking should be prohibited in or near film cabinets or film stores. Films should not be placed near steam pipes, radiators, or the like. A ready supply of fire extinguishers, together with buckets of water and sand should be available. The best means of extinguishing burning celluloid appears to be by the application of water.

(b) Electric light installations should be of a permanent character. Electric light bulbs in or near film stores or cabinets should be enclosed in strong glass globes.

(c) Generous ventilation should be provided in X-ray rooms. As recommended in paragraph 6, the plan of an independent exhaust fan in each room is to be preferred to a duct system common to a number of rooms. Doors should be arranged to open outwards, particularly from film-drying rooms and dark rooms.

(d) The stock of X-ray films, whether unexposed or developed, should be kept down to the minimum. The stock of film records should be subjected to periodical drastic weeding out. Discarded films should be at once deposited in strong fire-proof metal containers with self-closing lids, and destroyed at frequent intervals. They should not be placed in general refuse bins, or burnt in a closed vessel.

* See, for example, those published by the Electrical Review.

(e) Stocks of unexposed films for immediate use or current files of developed films should be stored in cool and dry lock-up thermally insulated metal or hard-wood cabinets. Such a stock should not exceed a total of about 50 lb. (i.e. about 1,000 12 by 10 in. films) distributed among several cabinets. Cabinets for unexposed films should be lead lined.

(f) Developed films which are temporarily taken into Hospital Wards or Theatres for the convenience of the Medical Staff, should not be left lying about in table drawers or cupboards, but should be kept in suitable metal containers. Such films should be returned to the X-ray department as soon as possible.

32. Film Stores.

Stocks of film exceeding about 50 lb. should not be stored in the X-ray department, but in a special dry, cool, and well-ventilated room reserved exclusively for the purpose. The main requirements of such a room are as follows:—

(a) The situation of the film store should not be such as to endanger the means of escape from any part of a building. The store should not be in the proximity of a lift-shaft or staircase-well, or near an intake or outlet of a general duct-ventilating system. In no circumstances should the store communicate with a general duct-ventilating system.

The store should preferably be an isolated single-storey building with independent access. Failing that, the store may be placed on the roof of a building, or if that is not feasible, in one of the higher stories in as isolated a position as possible.

(b) The walls, floor and ceiling of the store-room should be fireproof and of robust construction. The doors should be fireproof and of a self-closing, closely-fitting type opening outwards. If the store-room forms part of a main building, a useful further precaution is a fireproof vestibule with a second fireproof door.

(c) The store should be provided with a direct vent to the outer air, preferably on the side remote from the most adjacent building. Such a vent should not normally be less than a square foot in effective area, a figure which may require to be exceeded for large stores. The vent may be protected against weather, etc., by thin unwired glass or other equally frail device.

(d) The store may well be equipped with steel cabinets. If the store is designed to carry unusually large stocks of films (exceeding, say, 1 ton), it should be divided into completely isolated fireproof compartments each with its own vent and fireproof door.

(e) The temperature of the store should be maintained at a moderate figure. If the roof is exposed to the sun, suitable thermal lagging may be necessary in hot climates. It seems certain that good quality celluloid does not ignite spontaneously at any temperature attained under ordinary room conditions.

(f) The store should be equipped with an automatic water sprinkler device.

(g) If windows are provided in a film store, they are best situated in a north wall, though other considerations may be more important. Any windows immediately above the windows or vent of the store-room should be provided with wired glass.

VII. X-RAYS FOR INDUSTRIAL AND RESEARCH PURPOSES.

33. The preceding recommendations will probably apply to the majority of conditions under which X-rays are used for industrial and research purposes. Should screening be carried out continuously over long periods the protection afforded should be greater than that specified for hospital practice. In any case the protective arrangements and working hours should be such that the radiation received by the operator does not exceed 0.2 r. per day.

VIII. RADIUM PROTECTIVE RECOMMENDATIONS.*

(A) RADIUM SALTS.

Protection for radium workers is required from the effects of :—

- (a) Beta rays upon the hands ;
- (b) Gamma rays upon the internal organs, vascular and reproductive systems.

34. In order to protect the hands from beta rays, reliance should be placed, in the first place, on distance. The radium should be manipulated with long-handled forceps, and should be carried from place to place in long-handled boxes, lined on all sides with at least 1 cm. of lead. All manipulations should be carried out as rapidly as possible.

35. Radium, when not in use, should be stored in a safe as distant as possible from the personnel. It is recommended that the safe should be provided with a number of separate drawers individually protected. The amount of protection should correspond to the values given in the following table. These values, which are based on working conditions where there is proximity to radium, may be reduced for larger working distances.

Maximum quantity of radium element.	Thickness of lead.
gm.	cm.
0.2	8.5
0.5	10
1.0	11.5
2.0	13
5.0	15
10.0	17

36. A separate room should be provided for the "make-up" of screened tubes and applicators, and this room should only be occupied during such work. The room should be provided with an exhaust fan the control switch for which should be outside the room.

37. In order to protect the body from the penetrating gamma rays during handling of the radium, a screen of not less than 2.5 cm. of lead should be used, and proximity to the radium should only occur during actual work and for as short a time as possible.

38. The measurement room should be a separate room, and it should preferably contain the radium only during its actual measurement.

39. Nurses and attendants should not remain in close proximity to patients undergoing radium treatment with quantities exceeding  $\frac{1}{2}$  gm.

40. All unskilled work or work which can be learnt in a short period of time should preferably be carried out by temporary workers, who should be engaged on such work for periods not exceeding six months. This applies especially to nurses and those engaged in "making-up" applicators.

41. Discretion should be exercised in transmitting radium salts by post. In the case of small quantities it is recommended that the container should be lined throughout with lead not less than 3 mm. thick. It is more satisfactory to transport large quantities by hand in a suitably designed carrying case.

(B) RADON (RADIUM EMANATION).

42. In the manipulation of radon, protection against the beta and gamma rays has likewise to be provided.

43. The handling of radon should be carried out, as far as possible, during its relatively inactive state.

44. The escape of radon should be very carefully guarded against and the room in which it is prepared should be provided with an exhaust fan the control switch for which should be outside the room.

45. Where radon is likely to come in direct contact with the fingers, thin rubber gloves should be worn to avoid contamination of the hands with active deposit. Otherwise the protective measures recommended for radium salts should be carried out.

46. The pumping room should preferably be contained in a separate building. The room should be provided with a connecting tube from the special room in which the radium is stored in solution. The radium in solution should be heavily screened to protect people working in adjacent rooms. This is preferably done by placing the radium in solution in a lead-lined enclosure, the thickness of lead recommended being according to the table above.

IX. ELECTRICAL PRECAUTIONS WITH ELECTRO-MEDICAL APPARATUS.*

The advisability of periodic inspection of electro-medical apparatus is strongly recommended.

47. With the exception of diathermy, electro-medical treatment is carried out with apparatus using current either at ordinary mains voltages (100–250 volts, e.g. sources of ultra-violet light, radiant heat baths and thermal pads), or at somewhat lower voltages (10–75 volts, e.g. equipment for galvanic, faradic and sinusoidal currents, etc.). In the case of diathermy apparatus (whether medical or surgical) current at ordinary voltages and frequencies is converted into current at high voltages and very high frequencies. The electrical precautions to be observed depend to some extent on the type of apparatus.

48. Apparatus operated at mains voltages should be shielded as far as may be necessary by earthed metal guards. As regards lower-voltage apparatus the current may be derived from the mains through the intermediary of either: (a) step-down double-wound transformers or motor-generator sets, or (b) potentiometers or rheostats. (a) Has the important advantage of giving electrical isolation. If (b) is used, care should be taken that the patient is connected at the earthed or neutral end of the system, and that connecting plugs are of a type which ensures that the polarity cannot be reversed.

* See also the Ministry of Health's publication (Memo. 161 Med.) on "Precautions against Shock from Electro-medical Apparatus," p. 292.

49. Diathermy apparatus should preferably be of the type in which the output circuit is electrically isolated from the intermediate low-frequency circuit, and in all cases the low frequency side of the apparatus should be enclosed either in an earthed metal enclosure or in one offering good electrical insulation. Spark gaps should be enclosed and adjustment should be effected by insulated handles or the like.

50. Unless there are reasons to the contrary it is in general advisable to restrict earthing to the electro-medical apparatus and to use an insulated support for the patient. A convenient method of earthing is by the use of three-strand cable and three-contact plugs, in which one contact is earthed. Floors should be of an insulating character, and in carrying out treatment in wards with iron bedsteads, care should be taken that the bed does not make contact with heating pipes or the like. Flexible connections used to connect electro-medical apparatus to supply mains should be of the type having thick rubber insulation. Braided "flex" should be avoided.

51. A suitable system of power plugs should be adopted to ensure that apparatus cannot be connected to the wrong supply. Plugs of different sizes, properly labelled and bearing distinguishing colours, should be used for the various supplies, e.g. mains voltage A.C., mains voltage D.C., low voltage A.C., low voltage D.C.

X. ULTRA-VIOLET THERAPY.

52. Almost without exception, the sources of ultra-violet rays are fed from the mains. The apparatus should as far as possible be connected permanently to the mains, but if wall plugs are employed they should be combined with quick release enclosed switches. Tests of polarity of a main circuit should not be entrusted to the nursing staff and, in no circumstances, should they be encouraged to handle open wires leading from the main circuit. All such matters including the coupling up to the lamps, should be done by someone with technical knowledge.

53. Open and closed arcs yielding ultra-violet radiation are dangerous to look at with the naked eye; goggles of proved opacity to ultra-violet rays should be used both by patients and by operators. The opacity can only be proved satisfactorily by a spectroscopic test. Goggles which transmit radiation shorter than 3,800 A.U. should not be used. The nursing staff should be warned of the pigmentation produced by repeated or prolonged exposures to ultra-violet radiation.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF X-RAY AND RADIUM PROTECTION COMMITTEE

Thin muslin worn over the face will prevent pigmentation.

54. Practically the only closed arc used is mercury in a quartz tube. The tube gets hot in action and sometimes cracks with the expulsion of hot mercury. It is recommended that these lamps should not be used for overhead work without some device for catching spilt mercury.

55. The open arcs most used are carbon, carbon-cored and tungsten. There is some danger to patients from small white-hot fragments spurted off open arcs on starting.

56. Ventilation is of great importance because all arcs produce deleterious gases; the open arcs also consume oxygen. The air of rooms devoted to such work should therefore be frequently changed yet adequately warmed, for patients exposed to the rays often have little clothing on. Exhaust fans communicating with an outer wall or chimney shaft are recommended for the purpose.

57. Though the dangers of errors in dosage are not so great as with X-rays or radium, every effort should be made to get some measurement of the rays being administered. There is as yet no agreed unit of ultra-violet energy or standard method of measuring doses of these rays. The use of some simple indicator (photo-chemical or photo-electrical) is recommended as a check on the constancy of emission of the source. It is known that the yield of arc lamps increases proportionately with the power supplied to them, so that the volts and amperes in the circuit should be measured as a first check on the yield of radiation. The quartz in mercury vapour lamps gradually becomes more opaque to ultra-violet radiation, and so it becomes more necessary here to supplement the power observations by some device which will measure the radiation actually emitted by the lamp. Further precautions in the use of mercury lamps are necessary because, after these lamps are started, their output gradually decreases, but then increases to a steady value which may take ten to fifteen minutes to attain. Therapeutic work should, therefore, not be begun until this steady state is reached.

XI. GENERAL.

58. The governing bodies of many institutions where radiological and electro-medical work is carried on may wish to have further guarantees of the general safety of the conditions under which their personnel work. Although the committee believe that an adequate degree of safety would result if the recommendations now put forward were acted upon, they would point out that this is entirely dependent upon the loyal co-operation of the personnel in following the precautionary measures outlined for their benefit.

59. The Protection Committee further draw attention to the facilities which are provided by the National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, for the inspection of X-ray, radium, electro-medical and ultra-violet light departments, the testing of protective materials and equipment, the calibration of dose-meters and the testing of radium and radioactive substances. In particular, when new departments are being planned, the Committee suggest that it will normally be found specially advantageous to call on the services of the Laboratory prior to or at an early stage in the erection of the department. The Reports of the Laboratory are based on the Recommendations of the Committee, with which it works in close co-operation.

60. The Protection Committee will welcome at any time suggestions or information which would tend to improve the scheme of protection outlined in their Recommendations.

THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM.*

In organising a Hospital Radium service, rules and regulations are necessary to ensure :—

(1) The efficient therapeutic and economic use of Radium.

(2) The protection of Radium workers.

(3) The safe custody of Radium.

The safe custody of Radium, in use and not in use, can only be assured if certain essentials in the general equipment are provided; the economic use of Radium can only be obtained if a system is adopted which records the milligramme hours of treatment for which each container has been used; and for the protection of Radium workers suitable equipment must be provided and definite rules and regulations rigorously enforced. In this connection great importance should be attached to the employment of intelligent and instructed lay personnel. The formulation of the following suggestions for Rules and Regulations are to a large extent based on those in force in London Hospitals, more particularly St. Bartholomew's Hospital, The Middlesex Hospital, and The Cancer Hospital.

It should, however, be recognised that these may not be applicable to all Radium centres and that modification may be necessary to meet local circumstances.

An indicator system such as the one outlined ensures a double check on the issue of all Radium containers. It is also a method of quickly ascertaining the amount of Radium and its distribution in the safe, thus avoiding unnecessary exposure of the Radium worker. In addition, the amount of Radium and its distribution throughout the hospital is clearly shown.

3. RULES FOR THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM IN WARDS AND OPERATING THEATRES.
4. INDICATOR SYSTEM.
5. CASE RECORDS, FORMS AND BOOKS TO BE KEPT.
6. HEALTH AND PROTECTION OF WORKERS.
7. PROCEDURE CONCERNING THE ISSUING AND RETURN OF RADIUM. (Where an Indicator System is in use.)

GENERAL EQUIPMENT.

Radium Safe.

The Radium Safe should be constructed so that the Radium Assistant is never exposed to the full radiation of the whole stock of Radium, whilst removing Radium Containers from the safe.

The St. Bartholomew's Hospital pattern makes provision for this by means of a series of drawers in lead blocks. The safe should give a minimum filtration of 6 inches of lead in every direction. There are obvious advantages in placing such a lead safe in a fire-proof room, with a fire-proof door, but if such is not available the lead safe can be built into an ordinary fire-proof safe. This meets the requirements of the Insurance Companies.

Ward Lockers.

Ward Lockers are necessary in all units in which Radium is to be used so that Radium issued to a Department and not in use can be safely stored in these lockers.

The key should be in charge of the Ward Sister.

Radium Carriers.

There are various forms of Radium Carriers. These should give a minimum filtration of 1 cm. of lead and should be designed so that they are carried by long handles. The carrier when taken to the Ward should be placed in the Radium Locker.

Radium Bench.

In order to ensure adequate protection to Radium workers all Radium manipulations should be carried out on a properly constructed lead-lined bench. The type illustrated is used in the Radium Belge Laboratories in Brussels and gives adequate protection and facilities for easy manipulation of Radium Containers.

The surface of the table is covered with plate glass and there is a rack for instruments.

Accessory Apparatus.

A simple microscope of the Barts † or Kaye ‡ pattern for examining and identifying Radium Containers is necessary as are also various types of forceps and wooden needle holders.

GENERAL RULES FOR THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM.

1. The Radium shall be in the care and custody of the Radium Custodian, who may be Radiologist/Physicist/Radium Officer to the Hospital.

† F. L. Hopwood, Acta Radiologica, Vol. X, 1929.

‡ Kaye and Higgins, Brit. Journ. Radiology, 1929.

* Reprinted from the Third Annual Report of the Radium Commission.

THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM

2. When not in use it shall be kept in the Main Safe.

3. The key to the Main Safe shall be in charge of the Custodian. A duplicate key shall be in charge of the Secretary to the Hospital.

4. Radium shall only be issued on the instructions of the Custodian and to approved persons.

5. Radium shall not be left in any Department until a signed receipt for it has been obtained from the Sister-in-Charge or her deputy.

6. Radium Containers requisitioned but not required for treatment or those removed from a patient in any Department shall be placed in the Ward Locker and immediate notice given to the Radium Department.

RULES FOR THE CARE AND CUSTODY OF RADIUM IN WARDS AND OPERATING THEATRES.

1. No mercurial solution or iodine to be placed in contact with Radium Containers.

No plasters containing metallic salts to be used on sites to which Radium is being applied or to which it will be applied.

Radium Containers to be sterilised by boiling in plain water (without soda).

2. In the interests of the Nursing Staff, no Sister or Nurse shall be allowed to manipulate Radium over a period of more than three consecutive months. After this period at least two years shall elapse before she shall again be allowed to manipulate Radium.

3. The Radium Containers should not be held in the fingers but only with special forceps. Rubber gloves should be worn whenever practicable.

Radium Containers should only be inserted by means of special forceps or introducers. They must not be held by pressure forceps of the ordinary type.

4. Dressings from a patient carrying Radium must be carefully inspected before being destroyed.

In lesions of the alimentary tract and on special instructions all discharges and excreta should be carefully examined before being thrown away.

5. Radium Containers, on removal from the patient, must be at once placed in the Radium Carrier which, in turn, must be placed in the Ward Locker, and the Ward Sister or her deputy notify the Radium Department. Radium Applicators used intermittently during any given treatment must be kept in the Ward Locker when not in use.

In the case of a Radium Container becoming displaced the responsible surgeon must be informed at once.

In the event of loss of Radium the Custodian must be informed immediately.

6. Patients under treatment with Radium liable to displacement shall not be allowed to leave their beds except for transfer to the Operating Theatre or X-ray Department, and then only when in charge of a nurse.

7. A card with the word RADIUM in large red letters should be attached to the bed of all patients with Radium in or applied to them.

8. Patients shall not be permitted to leave the Hospital with Radium attached.

9. In case a Radium Container is missing :—

- (a) Immediately inform the Radium Officer of the suspected loss.
- (b) Allow Ward fire to die out. Do not disturb ashes.
- (c) Do not sweep floors or disturb furniture, sinks, sluices, etc.
- (d) If an X-ray examination is necessary, see that all the patient's clothing is changed before leaving the Ward. Preserve the clothing carefully.
- (e) No dressings or laundry must leave the Ward, nor dustbins be emptied until further instructions are received.
- (f) Steps should immediately be taken to damp down hospital incinerator fires, and search should be made in the suspected neighbourhood with a sensitive electroscope.

INDICATOR SYSTEM.

Where a large number of Radium Containers are in use it is possible by means of a check system to indicate :—

1. The amount of Radium and its distribution in the safe.

2. The amount of Radium and its distribution throughout the Hospital.

For this Indicator Boards and discs are necessary :—

1. Indicator Board No. 1 in Radium Office.
2. Distribution Board in Radium Office.
3. Indicator Board No. 2 adjoining safe.

(Where the safe is situated at some distance from the Radium Office, two Indicator Boards are required.)

Indicator Boards.

These Boards are divided into squares.

Each square represents a drawer in the safe and is furnished with pegs.

The coloured discs representing the Radium Containers in the various safe drawers, are placed on the pegs in the corresponding squares. One colour is used for Indicator Board No. 1 and another colour for Indicator Board No. 2.

Distribution Board.

The Distribution Board in the Radium Office is divided into squares representing each unit in the Hospital in which Radium may be used. It is also furnished with pegs.

Discs.

Each Radium Container bears its own registration number and markings, and is represented by two discs of different colours, bearing identical markings. Those on Indicator Board No. 1 in the Radium Office are white and those on Indicator Board No. 2 adjoining the safe are red.

CASE RECORDS, FORMS AND BOOKS TO BE KEPT.

1. National Radium Commission forms.

(Supplies can be obtained from :—

Messrs. Charles Skipper & East,
49, Great Tower Street,
London, E.C.3.)

2. International Gynaecological Forms.

(Supplies can be obtained from :—

Lt.-Col. A. B. Smallman,
Ministry of Health,
Whitehall, S.W.1.)

3. Request forms.

4. Acknowledgment forms.

5. Receipt Book.

6. Radium Container Record Card.

7. Stock Book.

HEALTH AND PROTECTION OF WORKERS.

The recommendations of the British Protection Committee should be adopted (a copy of these may be obtained from the Director, National Physical Laboratory, Teddington, Middlesex).

PROCEDURE CONCERNING THE ISSUING AND RETURN OF RADIUM

(Where an Indicator System is in use.)

1. The request for Radium Containers to be made on the printed form and signed by a senior member of the staff. One week's notice, if possible, to be given.

2. Acknowledgment of the request and statement as to date and time at which Radium can be obtained to be made on the form printed for the purpose.

3. Receipt Book to be filled up.

4. Indicator Discs corresponding to the Radium Containers, etc., requisitioned, to be taken from Indicator Board No. 1 and handed to a Radium Assistant, along with the key of the Main Safe. # PRECAUTIONS AGAINST SHOCK FROM ELECTRO-MEDICAL APPARATUS.

(Memo. 161 Med. issued by the Ministry of Health.)

THE number of serious accidents from the use of electro-medical apparatus has so far been extremely small, but two factors seem likely to increase the risk of such accidents in the future. First, the ever-growing number of new medical appliances introduced each year, in which current from the main electric supply is utilised; and, secondly, the tendency for hospitals and institutions generally to change from their own direct current supplies of comparatively low voltage to the standard alternating current of 230 volts. Industrial experience * shows that as regards the risk of serious shock, alternating currents are far more dangerous than direct currents.

Careful attention to the following points should go far to minimise the risk of accident:—

1. Old apparatus.—Old and improperly insulated apparatus is in itself a grave source of danger.

2. The electrical treatment of patients in bed.—It is essential that the iron bedstead † should by no possibility be in such a position as to act as a means of “earthing” the patient, that is, it should not be in contact with any earthed metal, e.g., heating or water pipes, radiators, or even an “earthed” wireless receiver. The increasing use of radiant heat baths, resuscitation cradles, thermal pads for eye and ear work, and similar appliances receiving current in direct connection with the main current supply, necessitates increased precaution lest the patient be accidentally “earthed”; [patients undergoing treatment should be out of range of accidental contact with “earthed” metal, such as radiators.

Where apparatus of non-earth-free type (i.e., not insulated from mains) is in use, it is undesirable that patients undergoing treatment simultaneously in the same room or ward should be within reach of each other.

It is important to secure that treatment rooms

* On industrial premises thirty fatalities due to shock from alternating currents at between 200 and 250 volts have occurred during the past five years, as compared with one due to direct currents of similar voltages.

† The necessity for these precautions (1 and 2) is illustrated by a recent fatality. A patient, in bed in a hospital ward, was receiving treatment to the leg from a radiant heat bath of the ordinary metal type. In this a metal frame carried metal lamp-holders on metal brackets, and moreover these were fixed in such a way that by long use or accident the fastenings of 7 out of 8 brackets had become loose, causing failure of insulation and rendering the metal case “live.” No shock was felt, however, until the patient, sweating from the effect of the treatment, grasped the iron bedstead, which happened to be in contact with a hot-water pipe, and was electrocuted. The current was alternating 50 cycles and 230 volts.

are not so crowded with apparatus that these precautions are impossible.

3. Earthing.—Under conditions which probably obtain in many wards, it may well be that electrical safety is best secured by insulating electrical apparatus instead of adopting the alternative method of earthing it. Thus, in wards where the floor is of wood and there is little likelihood of contact with earthed metal, preference should be given to the use of reading lamps constructed of wood rather than of metal.

In other situations, however, where there are conducting floors or earthed metal, the metal work of electrical apparatus should be earthed, and care taken to ensure the efficiency and maintenance of the earth connections.

In bath rooms or wash rooms the use of any portable apparatus, or apparatus fixed within reach from the bath or basin, should be avoided.

4. Electric pads.—The source of supply for heat treatment by electro-thermal compresses should always be at low voltage. If direct current mains supply is used, a reduction in voltage may be effected by the provision of a motor generator, whilst with alternating current, double-wound transformers, if necessary of a type tapped for regulation, should be interpolated between the source of supply and the patient.

5. Wireless headphones.—In cases where patients wearing headphones may be undergoing electrical treatment, or may handle electrical apparatus, it is desirable that consideration should be given to the insulation of the output circuit to which the headphones are connected, which can be easily effected by a double-wound isolating transformer. This recommendation also provides against the headphone circuits being alive at the pressure applied to the anode of the last amplifying valve of the wireless set.

6. Radiant heat baths.—These should be constructed as follows:—

- (1) An internal mesh screen should be fitted to cover and protect the lamps and holders.
- (2) The lampholders should be of insulating material, of heat-resisting character.
- (3) Metal work should be earthed.

7. Projectors for light treatment.—These possess the common feature of exposure of live conductors within the reflectors, and there is similar exposure with the use of arc lamps. Whilst it is unlikely that live parts would be touched whilst such apparatus is in use, there is some risk to the operator which could be minimised by the provision of mesh guards. In the case of projectors designed for use on industrial premises (bakeries) it has been found possible to incorporate such guards.

Earthing of the metal work of projectors is desirable.

8. Sets for generating electricity (as Galvanic, Faradic and Sinusoidal currents).—These are usually energised from the service mains, and for purposes of electrical safety may be considered to fall into two groups. In the first, a method of construction known as "earth free" is adopted, which, in effect, isolates the circuits with which the patient may be in contact from the main supply circuit. Electric shock at mains pressure would be possible only if a breakdown of insulation between the two systems occurred, and in good class apparatus the design is such that it would appear that there is no great risk of this occurring.

In the second group, however, electrical isolation from the mains supply is not effected. The earlier British-made sets, with some present-day Continental types, come within this category, and it is likely that this type of equipment is in use in a number of clinics. Potentiometer control is often incorporated, and a breakage of the resistance winding might result in the patient being exposed to mains pressure.

In many cases the mains supply to apparatus would be derived by means of a flexible cable and plug connector, and thus although initial care may have been taken that the plug is so inserted as to ensure that the circuit to the patient is at the neutral or earthed end of the potentiometer, a reversal of the plug or of the flexible conductor would mean that the application to the patient would be at mains pressure. If the patient should touch earthed metal under such conditions the consequences may be serious.

It is also desirable that all possible steps should be taken to guard against interruption of the current whilst the patient is under application. Whilst current up to considerable densities may flow without appreciable discomfort, provided efficient contacts are made, the consequences of sudden interruption such as might be caused by a fuse blowing, a bad contact in a plug fitting, or a breakage in a flexible connection would certainly lead to shock, under some conditions, of a severe character.

Other examples of apparatus within this class are cautery burners and cavity lamps connected to sources of main supply through resistance windings. In both cases the effect of open circuiting or of earthing the patient may be serious.

In general, it is considered that the use of sets of the second group, i.e., those which are not isolated electrically from the source of main supply, should be deprecated.

9. Apparatus for diathermy treatment.—These may also be divided into two groups. In the first the patient is subjected to a relatively low voltage high frequency current, and in the second to a minute current supplied at very high pressure and frequency. Whilst in both cases the necessary transformation effects isolation of the patient from the mains, there is an intermediate low frequency circuit operating at pressures ranging from 2,000 to 6,000 volts in which there may be sufficient electrical energy to cause severe electric shock. This intermediate circuit is, in some designs, isolated from the patient's circuit, but it would appear that such electrical separation is not invariably adopted. Where there is no isolation there would be an element of risk to the patient under certain rather remote conditions. In both cases it would be dangerous for the operator to attempt an adjustment or repair of the apparatus whilst live, and it is suggested that a preference should be evinced for designs in which:—

- (1) The patient's circuit is electrically isolated from the intermediate (or spark gap) circuit;
- (2) The spark gap is mounted inside the cabinet or enclosure containing the apparatus;
- (3) The door of the cabinet or enclosure is so interlocked with the source of main supply as to ensure that the latter is disconnected when the door is opened.

10. Systematic inspection.—Regular and systematic inspection by competent experts should be made of all electro-medical apparatus to ensure the maintenance of efficient insulation, so that there is no breakdown through which the voltage of the main supply can reach the metallic body of the apparatus. Insulated wiring usually breaks down at connections (plugs and holders), and these should be specially protected (e.g., by properly fitted spiral springs, etc.). These connections should also be inspected with special care and frequency. Certain manufacturers have organised a maintenance service for electro-medical apparatus in clinics and hospitals.

It is specially advised that the above points should be borne in mind when the purchase of new apparatus is under consideration.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST ANÆSTHETIC EXPLOSIONS IN OPERATING THEATRES.

(Memo. 191 Med. issued by the Ministry of Health, reproduced by the kind permission of the Controller, His Majesty's Stationery Office.)

THE number of serious accidents due to anæsthetic explosions in operating theatres or rooms has, so far, been small, but two main factors seem likely to increase the risk of such accidents. The first is that administration of ether and oxygen mixtures is common, the second lies in the extensive and growing use of electrical apparatus close to the patient during anæsthesia. A study of conditions present at the time of certain accidents in this country known to the Ministry has shown the need for precautionary measures, and while the matter will be the subject of further inquiries it has been thought desirable to issue forthwith the following memorandum prepared in the Ministry, in consultation with the Factory Department of the Home Office, on points to which attention should in the meantime be given.

The Anæsthetic.

1. (a) Ether-air and ether-oxygen.—A rich ether-oxygen mixture is more dangerous than a corresponding ether-air mixture and a very small spark suffices to cause ignition.

(b) Nitrous oxide.—Although this gas is not itself inflammable, mixtures of ether vapour with air or oxygen are made not less, but even more, inflammable if nitrous oxide is added.

(c) Ethyl chloride.—This yields a vapour which forms an explosive mixture with air, and its use is dangerous in proximity to flames or apparatus likely to involve a spark or hot wires.

(d) A.C.E. mixture.—The ordinary A.C.E. mixture may yield an explosive mixture with air and present dangers if used under the conditions mentioned in (c) above.

(e) Ethylene-oxygen.—With this mixture the explosion resulting from ignition is very destructive.

Choice of Anæsthetic.

2. Methods of anæsthesia which are available when explosion risks may be anticipated are :—

- Basal narcotics.
- Local analgesia.
- Nitrous oxide.
- Chloroform.

These may be used in their usual combinations and with oxygen. Chloroform is, however, not always advisable and if local anæsthesia is impracticable the risk of ether may be minimised by limiting its administration to the induction of anæsthesia. After an interval sufficient to ensure that all ether vapour has been practically eliminated, the use of electrical apparatus is admissible, anæsthesia being maintained with chloroform or nitrous-oxide-oxygen.

Risk of ether explosion may in general be lessened by the employment of a rigid closed circuit method of administration with carbon di-oxide absorption. Under such conditions with a tightly fitting mask no anæsthetic should escape into the air.

Anæsthetic Apparatus.

3. In some types of apparatus it is possible for an explosive mixture containing ether to be delivered although the valve or tap is set to admit chloroform or nitrous oxide only. This is due to evaporation combined with the slight suction effect of the gas flow and its occurrence is more likely if the ether bottle is surrounded by a hot water jacket. In this type of apparatus, the casual emptying of the ether container is no safeguard but possibly an added danger. The ether bottle should be altogether detached and not replaced until all trace of ether has been removed, or it should be fitted with an effective valve which closes the outlet from the bottle when ether vapour is not required.

It has been established by experiment* that ether-oxygen mixtures can ignite along a tube such as that employed in intratracheal administration or in conjunction with a mask. If ignition occurs at the outlet, therefore, flame may reach the ether bottle causing a burst with ejection of burning ether.

Enclosed suction pumps should be so constructed that the exhaust delivery is outside the motor case; otherwise in nose and throat operations it is possible to suck in the air containing ether until concentration within the explosive limits is reached.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST ANÆSTHETIC EXPLOSIONS

Electrical Apparatus.

4. (a) Surgical Diathermy.—Experience has shown that it is unwise to use diathermic apparatus if ether must be administered. The essential feature of this apparatus is the cutting arc or spark at the electrode which is definitely capable of igniting ether-air or ether-oxygen mixtures. The employment of a blanket or other form of screen between the patient's head and the point of application of the electrode is in no sense a reliable safeguard, and further risk of ignition arises from the spark gaps within the cabinet, and from the fact that the patient may be at an electrical potential, with consequent risk of sparking to the operator or other conducting bodies such as the table or anæsthetic apparatus.

(b) X-ray Apparatus.—Careful consideration of the electrical construction and method of connecting X-ray apparatus is essential if its use in the presence of an inflammable anæsthetic is required. Sparking may occur in consequence of a defect in insulation, at switches, regulators, fan cooling motors, or plug and socket connectors, the degree of danger depending on the ventilation and proximity to the patient.

(c) Surgical Lamps.—These instruments must, in general, be of small dimensions, a fact which has led to a form of construction which, comparatively, is not robust and therefore tends to become unreliable with use. Sparking may be caused by accidental short circuiting of exposed terminals, or may occur in consequence of defects such as failure of insulation or intermittent contact and also at switches including those of the regulating type. Such sparking is particularly dangerous in connection with nose and throat operations where anæsthesia is maintained by ether-oxygen.

It is very desirable that those concerned with the design, construction, maintenance, and use of surgical lamps should realise the explosion risk and endeavour to minimise it. The first two points are for the manufacturer, but the best designs may be rendered ineffective unless the maintenance is both careful and competent.

The danger of ignition is less when small low voltage dry cells are used than where other forms of supply, such as accumulators, transformers, motor generators and large dry cells are employed. In general the voltage of the source of supply need not be appreciably more than that for which the lamp bulbs are rated, common values being 2.5, 2.7 and 3.5 volts.

Grave risk of electric shock and sparking is introduced by the arrangement of a surgical lamp, in conjunction with a regulating resistance, for direct connection to public supply mains.

These considerations apply also to lamps intended for attachment to the surgeon's head, and other forms of light projectors, the degree of risk depending on ventilation and the distance from the point of administration (or leakage) of the anæsthetic.

(d) Cauteries.—In addition to the possibility of electrical sparking the heat of the cautery may in itself be sufficient to cause combustion of ether vapour. Ether-oxygen vapour will, under conditions quite compatible with those under which anæsthetists use such a mixture, ignite by contact with hot metal 300°–350° C. below visible red heat.

(e) General Electrical Installation.—This term includes wiring, lighting and heating apparatus with the necessary switches and plug sockets. The risk of anæsthetic ignition such as at a heater element, or in consequence of switch spark, or a defect, is again dependent on the ventilation and situation. Attention to these latter factors should result in material diminution of the danger.

Static Electricity.

5. Under ordinary conditions there is sufficient humidity in the atmosphere of this country to prevent dangerous static electrification, but on days of exceptional dryness, or in theatres to which only warm dry air is delivered by a ventilating plant, the possibility of electrification and consequently of sparking is present. The latter condition is becoming more common and the number of theatres at risk is therefore increasing. Insulated apparatus such as rubber-tyred patients' trolleys or portable anæsthetic equipments can be electrified in various ways, as, for instance, by drawing a dry blanket or towel across them. Such charges usually leak away after a few seconds, but discharge by sparking to the person or adjacent objects is capable of igniting ether-oxygen mixtures.

This source of danger may be eliminated by artificial humidification of the air. Where this course is undesirable it is advisable to earth insulated apparatus, such as rubber-tyred trolleys or operating tables, and in general a light trailing chain between trolley metal-work and floor will usually be effective.

Static electrification is readily discharged by earth connections, even those of comparatively high resistance, and this point is of some importance if it is considered undesirable on account of shock risk to introduce "dead" earthed apparatus into a theatre where current supplied from public mains is used.

Ventilation.

6. The first point for attention when risk of anæsthetic explosion is under consideration is the adequacy, or otherwise, of the ventilation. It may be possible to devise local means of extracting air and vapour from the immediate vicinity of the patient which may considerably diminish general diffusion of anæsthetic vapour in the theatre, a point which, apart from reduction of explosion risk, may be of physical advantage to the surgical staff.

Accidents.

The following brief accounts of accidents of recent occurrence in this country illustrate some of the dangers referred to.

(1) In the course of an operation for dilatation of a cancerous growth of the œsophagus with insertion of radium, and while the surgeon was withdrawing a small surgical lamp, an explosion occurred in the patient's mouth and also at the anæsthetic apparatus which burst into flames. (The patient subsequently died.)

When the surgeon was about to begin the operation the oxygen stream through the ether bottle on the anæsthetic equipment was stopped by means of a tap, the latter being set to deliver chloroform and oxygen only. It was found, however, that a small quantity of ether may have been drawn from the open delivery side of the bottle to join the main current of oxygen and chloroform to the patient.

(2) Whilst a portable anæsthetic equipment carried on a rubber-tyred vehicle was being pushed alongside a similarly tyred patient's trolley, an explosion occurred resulting in injuries to the anæsthetist and patient. The air supply to the anæsthetic room in which the explosion occurred was treated and delivered by a ventilating plant. Its humidity was very low in consequence of this treatment. It was afterwards found that the insulated trolleys could be readily electrified by sharp movements of blankets, etc. The possibility of electrification of the insulated vehicles has since been obviated by the provision of trolley chains which have been found effective on a "Granolithic" or similar floor.

(3) A diathermy operation was in progress for carcinoma of the epiglottis. Anæsthesia was induced by chloroform (intratracheal), but during the course of the operation the anæsthetist thought it desirable to change to ether. An explosion occurred when the diathermy electrode was within the patient's mouth. Some of those present were injured by flying glass, and the patient subsequently died.

CREMATION INFORMATION and PROCEDURE

◀ CREMATION SAFEGUARDS THE LIVING and Provides for the Disposal of the Dead with REVERENCE, SIMPLICITY, PURITY and ECONOMY ▶

At many of the 30 Crematoria established in populous provincial centres, special reductions are made in the case of persons of limited means, N.H. Insured and those dying in Public Hospitals and Institutions, and in London the cost including service and disposal of ashes in the beautiful Garden of Rest is less than the cost of a private grave.

§ STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS.—The Home Secretary's Regulations under Sec. 7, Cremation Act, require, inter alia, (a) Death to be registered except where an inquest has been held; (b) application to be made in Form A by relative or exor. and the required particulars confirmed by statutory declaration; (c) a certificate in Form B given by the doctor who attended the deceased in last illness; (d) a confirmatory certificate in Form C given by a doctor of not less than five years' standing; (e) where an inquest is held the Coroner's order for Cremation on the prescribed form must be obtained, in which case Forms B and C are not required.

§ ARRANGING CREMATION.—The statutory forms mentioned above may be obtained from the nearest Cremation Authority, or from the Undertaker, who will make the funeral arrangements in the usual way. Subject to the legal requirements being complied with, there is no difficulty in arranging for cremation within a few days of death.

§ CREMATION FACILITIES.—Crematoria are established in Birkenhead, Birmingham, Bradford, Bristol, Brighton, Darlington, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Guernsey, Hull, Ipswich, London (four), Liverpool, Leicester, Leeds, Manchester, Nottingham, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Plymouth, Pontypridd, Reading, Sheffield, Southampton, Stockport and Woking (under construction at Charing in Kent, and at Norwich). Spacious chapels are provided for the accommodation of those attending and every facility for religious services of any denomination. The entire ceremony is conducted under cover, thus avoiding the dangers and discomfort of attending grave-side funerals and many of the distressing features of burial.

§ ENQUIRIES.—Full information regarding the arrangements and charges at any Crematorium, or particulars of Assurance for cremation by Life Membership (£5 5s.) or weekly payments (3d. to 6d.) over a limited period will be forwarded free to Hospital Officials and others by

Telephone:
Welbeck 4168.

Founded 1861 — Incorporated by Royal Charter 1899

In the British Home and Hospital for Incurables at Streatham, a vital work of mercy is going on. It is the compassionate work of ministering to 110 middle-class men and women stricken with incurable diseases. Some are in pain, others enfeebled by years of suffering, all dependent on us for their home and existence. It is incumbent on us to make up their grievous loss of health, position and independence by careful treatment and sympathy. This gallant work must not be hindered, nor one of our 300 pensioners deprived of an allowance of 10/- per week, by lack of subscriptions.

More than £23,000 is spent annually on this compassionate and ever expanding work. Subscriptions are needed to help us increase our accommodation, and thereby to elect into the comforts of our home more of these incurable sufferers.

THE CANCER PROBLEM

To the average man who is not a statistician it means little or nothing to be told that cancer-mortality claims 0·15% of the total population of the country every year. It comes a little nearer home when it is explained that this percentage means that 61,572 people die of cancer every year in England and Wales alone.

And it does not claim only the aged and infirm, who may be regarded as having passed their period of usefulness to the community at large. It takes those in the full maturity of life—the mother just getting interested in launching her sons and daughters into life—the politician about to take high office—the business man at the zenith of his success, or the working man with an expensive growing family to maintain. The social and economic problems produced by the toll that cancer takes cannot, therefore, be exaggerated.

There is no room for reasonable doubt that the discovery of the cause and cure of cancer will come—but it won't come as a flash of inspiration in a moment. It will come as the result of long continued, laborious and exacting work such as is carried on at the Research Institute of The Cancer Hospital.

Hospital Pathological Service

After some 40 years' experience in carrying out routine and special pathological investigations for many hundreds of Hospitals and similar Institutions, a highly efficient Hospital Pathological Service has been developed by

THE CLINICAL RESEARCH ASSOCIATION.

The organised team-work of experts in all branches of Pathology enables the examination of specimens to be carried out at a moderate cost and with the minimum delay consistent with accuracy, whilst the large amount of material received daily by the Association permits of elaborate investigations being performed as ordinary routine work.

The cost of the service will be found to compare favourably with the capital charges, running expenses and salaries for a smaller and less efficient laboratory organisation. All the necessary apparatus for the collection and transmission of specimens is provided.

Any further information as to the working and cost of the scheme will be forwarded on application to:

IMPERIAL CANCER RESEARCH FUND

*Patron—His Most Gracious Majesty the King.
President—His Grace the Duke of Bedford, K.G.*

FOUNDED in 1902, under the direction of the Royal College of Physicians of London and the Royal College of Surgeons of England as a centre for research and information on Cancer, the Imperial Cancer Research Fund is working unceasingly on the systematic investigation of the disease in man and animals. The work of this Fund and of other great centres of research has increased our knowledge of the origin and nature of cancer and has so altered our outlook that the disease is now curable in increasing numbers. The income from investments and the Endowment Fund is insufficient to cover the total annual expenditure and, moreover, the present laboratories have become too small for the scope of the work. Administrative costs over a long period of years have consumed only 10% of the total annual expenditure, but the need for expansion makes it imperative for the Fund to appeal to the generous help of the Public.

DONATIONS & SUBSCRIPTIONS may be sent to the Honorary Treasurer, 8-11, Queen Square, London, W.C. 1, or may be paid to the Westminster Bank, Limited, Marylebone Branch, 1, Stratford Place, London, W., A/c Imperial Cancer Research Fund.

FORM OF BEQUEST

I hereby bequeath the sum of £ to the Treasurer of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund under the direction of the Royal College of Physicians of London and the Royal College of Surgeons of England, 8-11, Queen Square, Bloomsbury, London, W.C. 1, for the purpose of Scientific Research, and I direct that his receipt shall be a good discharge for such legacy.

The Home is almost entirely dependent upon charity; it is absolutely free to all without distinction of creed or country.

In addition to the Ordinary and Honours Degrees in Arts, the Higher Degrees of D.Litt., D.Sc., and Ph.D. are conferred. The Degree of Bachelor of Education is conferred on candidates who have attended courses and passed Examinations in Psychology and in Education (Theoretical and Practical). Diplomas in Education, in Geography, in Actuarial Mathematics, in Social Study, in French, in German, in Spanish and in English Language are granted. The curriculum in Divinity affords a thorough training in Theological subjects, and the Degree of Bachelor of Divinity (B.D.) is conferred. The Law Faculty, besides furnishing the professional equipment necessary for those intending to practise in Scotland, contains Chairs in Jurisprudence and Public International Law, Constitutional Law and Constitutional History, Roman Law, and Political Economy, as also Lectureships in other important branches of Law, and is thus adapted for students preparing for the Civil Service Examinations, and for legal, political, and administrative appointments generally. The Degrees of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.) and Bachelor of Law (B.L.) are conferred. The Faculty of Medicine has a full curriculum in Medicine and Surgery, and is equipped with very extensive Laboratories, and all other necessary appliances for Practical Teaching. Ample facilities are afforded for Clinical Instruction at the Royal Infirmary, Maternity Hospital, Royal Hospital for Sick Children, Hospital for Infectious Diseases and Royal Edinburgh Hospital for Mental Disorders. Four Degrees in Medicine and Surgery are conferred by the University, viz.: Bachelor of Medicine (M.B.), Bachelor of Surgery (Ch.B.), Doctor of Medicine (M.D.), and Master of Surgery (Ch.M.); and these Degrees qualify for practice throughout His Majesty's Dominions, and for admission to the Naval, Military, and other Public Medical Services in the United Kingdom. A Diploma in Tropical Medicine and Hygiene (D.T.M. & H.) is conferred on Graduates in Medicine of the University, and specially approved Medical Practitioners who have resided abroad. There are also Diplomas in Public Health (D.P.H.), in Psychiatry (Dipl. Psych.), in Radiology (D.R.), and in Tropical Veterinary Medicine; in Music there is a full course of study for graduation, and the Degrees of Mus.B. and Mus.D. are conferred. The University Staff consists of 62 Professors, about 160 Readers and Lecturers, and over 90 Assistants and Demonstrators. ## COMBINED OPERATION AND ORTHOPAEDIC TABLE

With the increasing importance of Orthopaedics in the realm of Surgery, the need has arisen amongst those Hospitals who have not the available facilities for a separate Plaster Room to have at their disposal an apparatus that will perform efficiently both as a general Operation Table and as an Orthopaedic Table. This new Emesay product serves this double purpose. It is compact and clean in design, and sturdy in workmanship, whilst all controls are situated beneath the table at the head end, and easy of access by the anaesthetist.
